STATE ACTS IN TWO-YEAR-OLD WRANGLE HERE

Calls for Consolidation of Butler, Bloominggrove, Union Districts.

SAYS TIME FOR ACTION

County Board Will Consider Problem Saturday; Doom of Adario School Seen.

Immediate consolidation of the Butler, Bloominggrove and Union rural school districts, which have been involved in a wrangle for two years, was ordered today by E. N. Dietrich, state director of education.

The action was ordered after the county board of education, unable to effect an agreement for merging the districts, turned the problem over to the state department of education.

In a letter to Boyd Robinson, county superintendent, Dietrich said: "Unless the authorities and citizens of the communities involved can agree upon a program of consolidation of their own, it is inevitable that some of the territory will be transferred by outside authority."

State Ready to Step In.

His statement apparently means that the state department of education will step in and effect the consolidation unless the Butler, Bloominggrove and Union rural boards comply with the instructions.

Dietrich added that the state department prefers to "let the people work out their own plan."

Although Robinson, who is also clerk of the county board, declined to comment on Dietrich's letter, he said the matter would be considered by the county board at a meeting Saturday morning and that some action probably will be taken then.

Superintendent Neutral.

"I prefer to stay out of the dispute and let the local districts and the state department work out a solution to the problem," the county superintendent said.

Dietrich's order virtually doomed the Butler township high school at Adario which has been

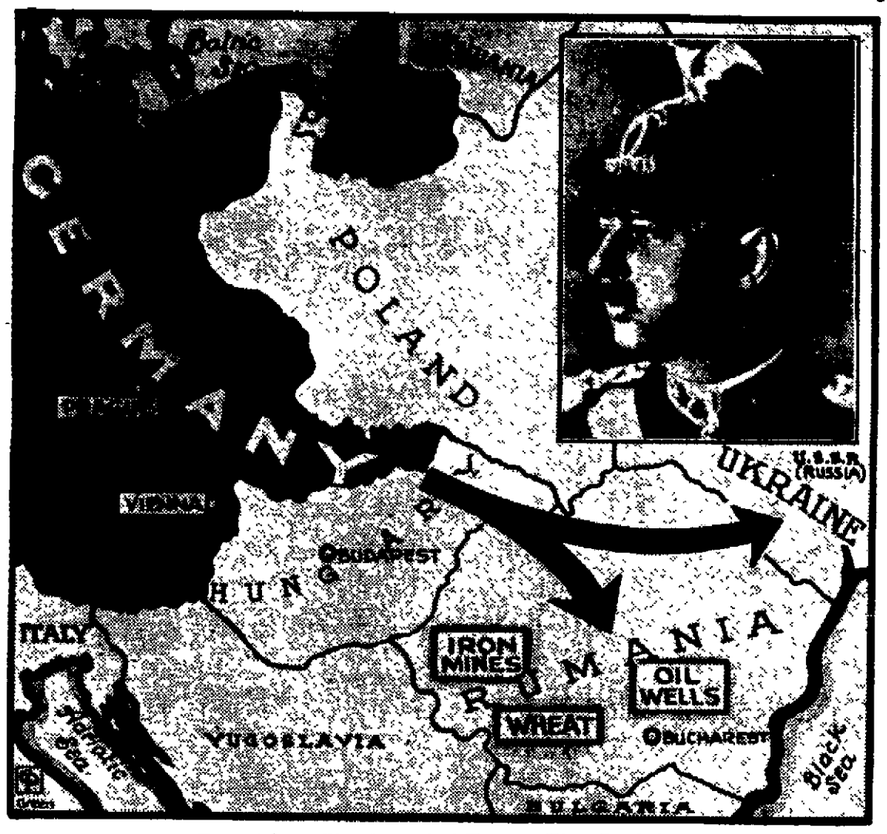
Rumania And How It Would Benefit Germany



Rumania's position in central Europe—King Carol, inset.

Dictator Adolf Hitler's plans involving Rumania are being viewed with alarm in Bucharest and throughout the world. Hitler, according to reports, has already demanded an economic agreement with Rumania, seeking the output of Rumania's mines, oil wells and agricultural products. Observers point out that should Rumania resist the chancellor's demands, there is a possibility that Hitler may send his troops into the country. The successful seizure of Rumania, as the map above indicates, would put German in a better position to gain access to the rich Ukraine territory. Reliable reports say that trade agreements have been drawn up, but are as yet unsigned. Meanwhile, democratic powers, attempting to "stop Hitler" are trying to persuade Rumania not to enter into any agreement with Hitler that would give Germany the oil and wheat it so badly needs.

HEALTH CHIEF URGES WATER, SEWER ACTION

Annual Report Recommends Council Consider at Once Rehabilitation Plans.

WOULD COMBINE PROGRAMS

Rehder Says First Step Should Be to Learn What Improvements Are Needed.

City council at a special meeting tonight will be presented with a renewed request that immediate consideration be given to the rehabilitation of Mansfield's sewer and water systems from a public health standpoint.

The request is made by Dr. Roy C. Rehder, city-county health commissioner in recommendations included in his annual report filed with city council today.

It follows a similar request made by the Mansfield Board of Health last fall when a communication to council termed the condition of the city's sanitary sewer system "deplorable" and a "menace" to the public health.

State Backs Program.

The State Department of Health also has repeatedly demanded that the city conduct a comprehensive survey of the sewer system for the purpose of making needed improvements and twice turned down proposed extensions in the system because the lack of the survey.

"City officials should give serious and immediate consideration to a comprehensive survey of the sanitary and storm sewer systems with the view of providing relief wherever indicated," Dr. Rehder said.

He also recommended the continuation of the program of expansion and protection of the water supply. He added:

"It is first of all necessary that the survey of the sanitary sewer system be completed so we know just what improvements are needed. It would be well for council to then consider an improvement program that will eliminate the unsanitary conditions that create a hazard to the general health of the community."

Dr. Rehder pointed out that any improvement in the water distribution system would tend to pro-

Britain's Plans For Coalition Of Powers Falters

Rumania, Threatened By Hitler, Frowns On Possibility Of Russian Troops Crossing Her Land; London Turns To Welcome French President.

BULLETIN

BUCHAREST—(AP)—The shooting of a German citizen by a Jew at Brasov, 100 miles northwest of here, caused concern today in the Rumanian capital. Some sources believed Germans might regard the shooting as an "international incident."

(By International News Service)

LONDON—The first flush of official enthusiasm over possibility of a coalition of democracies to "stop Hitler" dimmed perceptibly today as London turned itself to the easier task of according a royal welcome to President and Mrs. Albert LeBrun of France.

Of Anglo-French solidarity, there has never been the slightest doubt, so Dover and London turned out in full force to shower attention on the visiting dignitaries and demonstrate thereby to Reichsfuehrer Adolf Hitler that Britain and France stand closely together, come what may.

So far as the much-vaunted and widely-publicized coalition is concerned, anticipated difficulties have begun to develop and Whitehall soft-pedalled all hopes that a trenchant declaration against Germany by the Democratic nations might be expected within 48 hours.

It was officially admitted that matters are proceeding slowly "due to the necessity of widest possible consultation."

"But," a spokesman added, "the whole subject is still under active consultation."

In Moscow, the Soviet government announced that it had proposed a six-power conference to Britain, calling in the "most interested" states affected by Adolf Hitler's absorption of Czechoslovakia but said the British government had declared the proposal "premature."

Plan Held Too Slow.

In London, the plan was reported to be considered too ponderous and slow.

As most interested states, Russia named itself, Great Britain, France, Poland, Rumania and Turkey.

One of the stumbling blocks already encountered is that Rumania itself, chiefly threatened at the moment by Hitler's imperialism, is not at all keen to collaborate with Soviet Russia particularly if such collaboration involves possible future dispatch of Soviet troops into or across Rumania.

It was felt that nothing definite would transpire, however, until Chamberlain and Lord Halifax had an opportunity to confer at first hand with French Foreign Minister Georges Bonnett, who is accompanying President Lebrun.

Reaction in the British dominions to the scheme for an anti-German declaration that may include nine powers was understood to be uniformly favorable, but the position of some of the smaller European nations expected to adhere to the idea has not yet been clearly defined.

Under plans now being discussed through diplomatic channels, the proposed declaration might be adhered to by Poland, Rumania, Turkey and Greece, and perhaps by Jugoslavia and Bulgaria.

Negotiations aimed at preventing further German incursions such as that which obliterated Czechoslovakia will receive an impetus with the arrival in London today of French Foreign Minister Georges Bonnet, who is accompanying President and Mme. Lebrun on their state visit to London.

Bonnet is expected to take an active part in assisting the diplomatic maneuvers for formation of the anti-Hitler coalition.

2 Questions Foremost.

Two of the foremost questions to be taken under consideration are Germany's ambitions regarding Memel and the efforts of the reich to gain domination over Rumania, economically, so that the vast Rumanian oil reserves would be available to Germany in the event of a war.

(Background note: Germany's next expansionist move is expected to involve Memel, the German speaking territory which was taken from the reich after the

Willard Girl-Bride, 14, Husband, 22, Held In Jail

Law Takes Hand After Sandusky Wedding; School Truant Officer Uncovers Case.

(By Staff Correspondent)

WILLARD—A child bride was in custody of the Huron county probate court today and her husband was under arrest on a charge of contributing to the delinquency of a minor, following their marriage which took place Saturday, presumably in Sandusky.

The bride is Bertha Irene Woodard, 14, a pupil in the fifth grade, and the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Albert Woodard, Woodvine street. The husband is Emerald Moraland, 22, former employe of an ice company but now unemployed. The father of the girl-bride is also unemployed.

The schoolgirl was taken in custody at her home here yesterday afternoon after Truant Officer C. T. Kieffer had gone to the home to inquire about her absence from school. The girl brought out her marriage certificate and said "now I don't have to go to school."

The 22-year-old husband was with the child-bride when the truant officer arrived. Officers said today that his home was in Montpelier, Williams county, and that he had known the girl about a week.

She was taken to Norwalk last night and placed in charge of the probate court. Judge Luther Van Horn said today that the girl was a parolee from the Delaware home for girls, and that the mother had served a term in the Toledo workhouse in connection with a delinquency case involving another daughter.

Got License In Sandusky.

The couple appeared at the Erie county probate court in Sandusky last Saturday with the girl's parents. They swore she was 16 years old, according to court attaches, and signed the application for a marriage, and gave a Sandusky address. At the request of the parents the Erie county court waived the five-day clause which requires that five days must elapse between the application and issuing of a license.

Judge Van Horn said this morning that the girl would be committed to a state institution and her husband's case will be heard Friday morning. He also said that he would immediately ask for the arrest of both of the girl's parents on a charge of contributing to the delinquency of a minor.

Myrna Smith's Husband Loses $4,000-a-Year State Post.

COLUMBUS — (AP) — Barton H. Smith, husband of Mrs. Myrna Smith, former Gov. Martin L. Davey's personal secretary who was named to the state parole board, declined comment today on the loss of his position with the bureau of unemployment compensation, recently brought under Republican administration control through reorganization.

Smith's $4,000-a-year job as administrative assistant in the bureau's employment office was abolished Friday, together with that of Miss Frances R. Whitney of Cincinnati, who held the same rank.

An administration-backed bill which would abolish Mrs. Smith's $6,000-a-year parole board post through reorganization is pending in the state legislature.

OIL PROFITS DROP

CLEVELAND—(AP)—The Standard Oil Company of Ohio reported today a 1938 net profit, after deductions including taxes and depreciation, of $1,964,605, compared with $3,362,960 for 1937.

OPPOSE CUT IN SCHOOL FUNDS

Board Members Send Appeals for Adequate Finances for Handicapped Pupils.

With Mansfield's school for handicapped children endangered because of lack of funds, the board of education today appealed to state legislators from this district to back an adequate state finance program to support the schools.

Supt. W. L. Miller told board members last night that the state is already $3,000 in arrears in its payments for Mansfield schools for the handicapped and that a proposed $45,000 cut in the state budget for special schools would force the schools here to curtail their activities.

Miller pointed out that there is already a deficiency amounting to $515,627 in the state fund for special schools, and a reduced budget would leave nothing to pay off the debt and seriously impair the present operation of the system.

Under the present plan, Mansfield receives approximately $12,000 a year to care for nearly 70 handicapped pupils in special classes. Conducted by special teachers, the classes provide instruction for children afflicted with poor vision, deafness and other physical defects. There are 25 pupils in the city's Vision Conservation school, 24 in the Sunshine school, and 18 in the deaf school.

The school board last night authorized Miller to mail appeals to Representative Ralph C. Lutz of Richland county and State Senator P. H. Rogers of the 27th-29th district, asking them to oppose any cut in the budget that would damage the special schools here.

SURRENDER NEAR

Paris Told Spanish Peace Negotiations Started.

PARIS — (U.P.) — Official dispatches to the French government from San Sebastian today reported that peace negotiations have begun actively between the Burgos and Madrid governments, hinting at the possibility of an early end of the Spanish war by surrender of the Republican army.

Negotiations, the government was informed, began last night after Burgos had reiterated its refusal to anything but unconditional surrender.

Burgos warned that the nationalist army would march on Madrid in comparatively a few hours unless Gen. Segisimundo Casado negotiates.

LIGHTS STAY ON

NEWCOMERSTOWN — (AP) — This village of 4,465 was assured of street lighting for another six months today, but Newcomerstown officials faced payless paydays.

Council eyed its depleted treasury at a session last night, but rejected Mayor C. B. Mugford's proposal to turn off the street lights as an economy measure.

Ovel Bieter, council clerk, warned, however, that village officials would go payless.

GARNER 'TOPS'?

Elliott Roosevelt Says Texan Leads Presidential Field.

FORT WORTH, Tex. — (AP) — Elliott Roosevelt, son of the president, says Vice President John N. Garner is "in the driver's seat right now" as a likely Democratic candidate for the presidency in 1940.

In a radio broadcast, young Roosevelt said last night "there is little room to doubt that Mr. Garner and the president of the United States have traveled separate roads since the winter of 1937."

Reports have it that the break came after the vice president became so incensed over the administration's handling of the sit-down strike situation that he quit Washington and returned to Uvalde for a six-month vacation.

Terming Garner "a party man," the speaker said Garner saw in last fall's elections a return to conservatism.

3 'Nobodies' In 1929 Control Europe's Fate, Bromfield Avers

Three men who were "nobodies 10 years ago" control the destiny of Europe today, Louis Bromfield, American novelist who recently returned to his native Mansfield, told an audience of more than 1,300 last night at the high school auditorium.

Thus did the writer characterize Stalin, Hitler and Mussolini in his lecture which ended a series of five on "International Understanding," sponsored by the University and Rotary clubs.

Five minutes before the hour scheduled for the talk, every seat in the auditorium was taken, and after more than 100 persons had been admitted for standing room, the doors were closed and a number of persons turned away. It was the largest crowd ever to attend a lecture there.

Bromfield has the faculty of describing personalities with a few telling words: "Stalin comes from the Georgian province which is a wild, half-savage country; he is a brilliant leader but half-savage and a despot. . . . Hitler is a neurotic, a middle class Austrian who was a nobody 10 years ago. . . . Mussolini a small-time, unknown socialist, who rose to power on the stepping stones of his country's misery. . . . Daladier, not a great man by any means, but a clever politician."

Bromfield drew an understandable picture of the political and economic background of the Eu-

BERLIN: Nazis Unleash New Press Attacks On Democracies

(By Associated Press)

BERLIN—The Nazi press heaped increasing anger on the western powers today, while informed foreign circles expected Adolf Hitler's next move to expand the German empire to come from Memel this week-end.

The gravity of the international situation was reflected by Germany's recall of her London and Paris ambassadors "to report" after the same British and French action.

The controlled press heaped abuse on the two democracies who denounced German occupation of Czechoslovakia. A source close to the Wilhelmstrasse said the fact that the press was permitted to cut so deeply into Anglo-German relations revealed the seriousness of the situation.

"If English policy is aimed at bringing the axis powers into a kind of quarantine," this source said, "then the determination here is to answer with unequivocal clarity and to meet all the consequences."

Deutsche Diplomatisch Politische, information distributed by the official news agency, revealed that the recalls were regarded sternly and that Germany definitely was taking an aggressive stand even to the extent, if neces-

WASHINGTON: U. S. To Bare Note Condemning Czech Grab

(By United Press)

WASHINGTON—The United States will make public today a formal note to Germany condemning its dismemberment of Czechoslovakia, refusing to recognize the legality of its protectorates over former Czech provinces, and questioning the permanency of its seizures.

The note, which was delivered to Charge D'Affairs Hans Thomsen at the German embassy yesterday, was expected to arouse the indignation of Adolf Hitler and other high Nazi officials.

It was prepared by Acting Secretary of State Sumner Welles, in collaboration with President Roosevelt, as an answer to Germany's formal notification of its action.

It was understood that the note would repeat the denunciation of Nazi "wanton lawlessness," which Welles made at a press conference Friday, and inform Germany that the United States cannot grant legal recognition of its acts. Welles has condemned Nazi "acts which have resulted in temporary extinguishment of the liberties of a free and independent people."

Delivery of the note climaxed a series of "short of war" moves by the administration as a protest against Nazi aggression.

U. S. Won't Join In European War, Roosevelt's Stand

VIEW GIVEN AT SECRET ARMS PARLEY BARED

Keep Clear of Conflict, Policy of America, Supporters of Neutrality Shift Claim.

BACKGROUND

President Roosevelt called members of the senate military affairs committee to the White House for a secret discussion of defense needs during committee consideration of the $358,000,000 army expansion bill. At this meeting he spoke plainly, of the danger of war in Europe and of the necessity for a defense program that would insure this nation aaginst any threat of western hemisphere invasion. His conversation with the committee is now playing a part in the controversy developing over the administration's new proposal for a neutrality law.

(By International News Service)

WASHINGTON — President Roosevelt, at his now famous secret conference with the senate military affairs committee, declared without reservation that his administration would never permit American military forces to go to war on behalf of any foreign country not in the western hemisphere.

He told the senators that the United States must and does stand with the European democracies against totalitarian aggression, but that if actual war comes, this country's only interest will be to keep clear of the conflict.

This was learned by International News Service today from a participant in the conference, as the president's words were cited by supporters as an argument in behalf of the new proposal for a cash-and-carry neutrality law.

Starts Study Tomorrow.

Senator Pittman (D) of Nevada, chairman of the senate foreign relations committee, introduced the neutrality legislation, and it will come before his committee for preliminary consideration tomorrow, when Army, Navy and state department witnesses appear primarily to discuss the Pittman resolution making American navy vessels and munitions available for sale to other western hemisphere nations.

The neutrality resolution gathered bi-partisan support immediately upon introduction but it faces stiff opposition. The strict isolationists, such as Senators Johnson (R) California, Borah (R) of Idaho, and others, were preparing to demand repeal of all existing neutrality legislation as an alternative to the Pittman measure.

Some senators complained that the measure would implement Great Britain and France in war time, so long as Great Britain maintained mastery of the seas, and they privately condemned the proposal as discriminatory.

Pittman denied charges of discrimination. He said that while his resolution naturally would help any nation able to maintain control over the seas, and send ships to America to haul munitions away, it was strictly a measure for American neutrality.

"I drafted this bill for America, and for no other country," Pittman said. "It provides for real neutrality, in that it prohibits the movement of munitions or any other materials, to any belligerents in American boats. Certainly, it permits the sale of any and all American goods, to anyone who wants to come to American shores, buy and carry away their purchases. But it provides carefully that title to such goods shall be transferred on American soil, and does not in any way involve this nation. I hope and believe that it will pass."

Windsors Consider Trip To U.S. Again But Set No Dates

PARIS — (U.P.) — The Duke of Windsor was said by his friends today to have made his plans for voyages abroad in 1939—including a possible trip to America—dependent upon the activities of his brother, King George VI.

Associates said that no date had been fixed either for the return of the former monarch to England or for his long-planned trip to the United States, but it was understood the Duke and Duchess still hoped to make the journey to America.

Any major journey would depend largely upon the convenience of King George, but that is due to a voluntary decision by the Duke to avoid any embarrassment to his brother such as might have occurred if the Windsors had gone to the Americas before George and the queen go.

The original plans for a tour of America by the duke and duchess—the former Wallis Warfield of Baltimore—in 1938 were cancelled by the duke after consulting with his close American friends long before King George decided to make his trip.

Mrs. J. E. Gibson, 288 West Fourth street, is such a rabid Marian Anderson fan that she has "inoculated" her friends with the bug. When the Negro contralto sang over the air lanes a week ago Sunday night, Mrs. Gibson received a long distance telephone call from friends in St. Louis—merely to tell her, in case she didn't know, that her favorite was to sing.

The convenience of a map of the United States on one's pajamas may be something of a mystery, but a Mansfield store today displayed new styles for men which included night wear decorated with a large map in colors. The map shows the states and their capitals and principal cities. One spectator suggested that a pair of the pajamas might be just the thing for his son who seems to have difficulty getting his geography lessons.

When it comes to birthday anniversaries, Russell Tither doesn't have much time for them. At least he didn't last Sunday. Tither, prominent in Mansfield musical circles and now of Bucyrus, spent his anniversary singing. He started off by appearing with the Bucyrus male chorus at the Ohio Penitentiary; in the afternoon he broadcast over WCOL, Columbus, and then hurried to Delaware to sing on another program. He is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Tither, Park avenue west road.

He wasn't a G-man but he set himself up as guard over Uncle Sam's mail box at the corner of Park avenue west and North Main street the other day. He was a big collie who sat down at the base of the mail box and refused to permit any one to come near to post letters. He growled and barked when anyone attempted it, and finally drew quite an audience, which only bewildered him. But he refused to budge until some man who "spoke his language," showed him how the mail box worked and then set him on his way.

THREE MISHAPS

One Man Injured, 4 Others Escape Unhurt.

One man was injured, and four others escaped injuries in three auto accidents reported near Mansfield last night and early today by the state highway patrol.

Injured was Robert Hasmer, jr., 29, of Syracuse, N. Y. He was treated at General hospital for scalp burns, bruises above the right eye, and burns on the left leg, suffered when his car turned over on the Ashland hill about midnight, when he failed to make the curve at the top of the hill. Hasmer was alone.

J. R. Silsby, 23, of 74 Bowman street, escaped injuries when his car ran off the highway on the Springmill road at Roseland at 12:15 a. m. today, it was reported. With Silsby was Al Kitzmiller, 21, of 23½ Hedges street, who also escaped injury.

A car driven by Earl Kochheiser, 25, of Bellville, ran into the rear of a truck driven by Robert Barr, 26, 272 East Fourth street, on route 42, four miles north of Mansfield at 7:30 p. m. Monday. Kochheiser told patrolmen that the truck had no light on the rear end. With Barr was Richard Shider of Lexington.

WASHINGTON—(U.P.)— An application by the Crosley Corporation to build a television station at Cincinnati was considered today by the television committee of the Federal Communications commission.

Crosley asked for authority to use the channel 50,000-56.000 kilocycles with aural and visual power of 1,000 watts, continuous service.

Crosley intends to do some apparatus experimentation but building programs to satisfy the public will be its first concern, the application said.

DRAFT PROTEST ON CANAL PLAN

Ashtabula Organizes 'United Front' to Fight Waterway; Claims Jobs Threatened.

(By Associated Press)

ASHTABULA — A "united front" of city and county officials and civic groups drafted plans today to carry a protest to Washington against the proposed $200,000,000 Lake Erie and Ohio river canal.

Tom R. Bailey, Ashtabula city manager, said he would go to Washington March 28 to appear before the rivers and harbors committee of the house.

"The proposal threatens the jobs and homes of a widespread population and would benefit only a restricted few," Bailey said last night in addressing several hundred persons at a protest mass meeting.

E. C. Lampson, editor of the Jefferson, O., Gazette, said the only ones to benefit through construction of the waterway would be "Youngstown steel interests who are in competition with those of Pittsburgh."

He estimated resultant losses of Ashtabula through building of the canal at 25 million dollars.

Commenting on the national defense aspects of the canal, Lampson said: "If I were an enemy of this country in wartime, and we here had to depend upon a canal for transportation, all I would have to do is drop just one bomb or a few pounds of powder on that canal and it would be all over. As a national defense project I know nothing as crackpot as this canal would be."

John C. Bane of Pittsburgh, esimated that two-thirds of the commerce at the port of Ashtabula would be lost should the canal be built. He declared that other Lake Erie ports would suffer proportionately.

Bane also declared that the railroad brotherhoods had figured that the canal would cause layoff of 11,000 rail workers.

NEW DEAL PHILOSOPHY TO STAY IN HIGH COURT TILL AFTER '50

(By United Press)

WASHINGTON — President Roosevelt's nomination have entrenched New Deal philosophy in the supreme court until the prospect today is that it will be dominant there for the next 15 to 20 years.

Given one more vacancy to fill, the New Deal might establish an absolute majority on the high bench and one which would prevail until well beyond 1950.

That situation has been brought about by Mr. Roosevelt's nomination of comparatively young men. It is a paradox of politics that the judiciary was the center of anti-New Deal philosophy when the legislative and executive branches were riding high on the popular Roosevelt wave and that it is coming now into the New Deal fold as the legislative branch begins to slip away from the administration.

With confirmation of William O. Douglas, Connecticut, as an associate justice, Mr. Roosevelt will have named four of the nine members of the high bench. Douglas nomination was made yesterday. He was promoted from chairmanship of the securities and exchange commission.

Estimated on the basis of average at death of supreme court justics, the New Deal should be substantially represented until 1955 or thereabouts. Douglas now is 40 years old. If he served until the average age at which justices have died, the New Deal philosophy would have at least one spokesman on the supreme court 30 years from now.

After serving beyond his first presidential term without an opportunity to make a supreme court nomination, Mr. Roosevelt has named four justices since Aug. 12, 1937.

RARE DISEASE

Bucyrus Boy, 2, Victim of 'Ailment of Kings.'

BUCYRUS — Funeral services were held this afternoon at the Wise funeral home for Richard Copper, 2, son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Copper, who died Sunday at his home of hemophilia. Rev. J. H. Butler was in charge of the service and burial was made in Oakwood.

The child fell on Feb. 26 and injured his knee. The wound never stopped bleeding and a toxic condition developed. The disease is frequently called the "disease of kings" because a number of the members of the Spanish royal family were afflicted with it, as were the Hapsburgs, and several members of the Romanoffs. A former Bourbon prince, son of ex-King Alphonso of Spain, died several months ago from hemophilia which developed after an auto accident.

STATE EXPERT WARNS OF NEW WPA LAY-OFFS

Assembly Committee Debates Fund Matching Plan in New Needy Aid Program.

(By United Press)

COLUMBUS—An official warning that annual Ohio poor relief costs in 1939 and 1940 would amount to at least $24,000,000—plus drastic increases if WPA layoffs result from threatened congressional economies — plagued the joint relief committee today in its study of a biennial program.

In the meantime, legislative machinery continued grinding on administration ripper bills with the senate scheduled to act today on the bill to replace the parole board with a three-member pardon and parole commission.

Reports of nervousness among some Republicans over the political wisdom of extensive ripper legislation, was believed to have prompted a meeting last night of house and senate leaders to discuss policy. It was understood the question of a recess late this month also was touched upon.

Cost Divided.

O. P. Van Schoik, chief relief examiner under State Auditor Joseph T. Ferguson, told the relief committee that $24,000,000 would be the "minimum" for annual relief expenditures this biennium based on past experience. The cost, under the matching plan, would be divided between state and local governments.

Van Schoik's additional statement that WPA lay-offs would throw an added burden on the relief rolls came almost simultaneously with an announcement from Ohio WPA headquarters that if congress further curtails WPA funds some 36,500 Ohio cases would be dropped from work relief lists.

Van Schoik denied it would be "safe" to consider $10,000,000 in state funds ample each year even on a "50-50" matching basis.

FAIR ENOUGH!

Ever Wonder Why Good Fiction Pays Dividends? Just Try to Write Some

—By WESTBROOK PEGLER

NEW YORK—Fiction writers make big money at home, sometimes as much at $3,000 for a story, plus the movie rights, which may be as much again. It would seem to be a soft way of making a luxurious living, for one story a month should suffice.

Some highly successful fictioneers have made one story last a lifetime, merely writing it over and over, now in a Palm Beach setting, now in Hollywood, now on board a ship, and now, for a change of pace, in the poor but honest surroundings of the five-and-ten.

But, although I can run a typewriter and know as many words as the next one and can think up the doings and sayings with little effort, fiction and its rich and easy rewards plainly are not for me, because I find it impossible to write convincing description of pretty ladies.

"The beautiful oval of her face," I say, and then look at the words on paper and "X" them out and back into it like this: "Against the pale radiance of the moon the beautiful oval of her face—" Nope. Ham! Fresh sheet of paper. Once more, now: "The deep pools of her eyes, illumining the tender oval of her face—"

It gets worse and worse, and it does no good to play the duck for the beautiful oval of her face and start in on her finely chiseled throat, the slender tendrils of her fingers or the tantalizing tilt of her chin, because, eventually, you have to assemble her like a car on the line.

You have got to select a certain kind of eyes, big and round, or mischievous crescents, and fit them alongside a certain type of nose and a small, petulant mouth (for society types), or a different kind for noble, self-sacrificing girls.

That is another problem. You can't say she has a big mouth. It sounds funny. Like mush-mouth. It takes days and days of toil and hundreds of cigarets to create a nice mouth which is not small, indicating a small, spoiled nature, nor yet an ear-to-ear mouth.

Some fictioneers seem to just throw them together any old way and get good results, which may explain why prime fiction brings such high prices.

Then you still have to surround all these fixtures with an outline which, say what you will, has got to be a delicate or tender oval, because, after all, it you give her a square face the editor is going to say, "Why, this doll is just an old bag," and bounce it right back at you.

And this head being completed, including the hair—which, by the way, has a seductive fragrance and tickles deliciously against the man's cheek—has got to be mounted on a nice chassis, and there you are in trouble again. Not tall, nor runty, not fat, neither scrawny. Just right. You try describing just right and you will see.

I think the reason why fictioneering remains a highly specialized and profitable trade is that most men never stop to consider why a face is attractive to them and would find, if they did, that they go for faces which would sound awful on paper.

Men, too, are hard work, because here again the standards are very high and the rules exacting. Firm chin, dancing eyes, tall, lithe, lean, clean-limbed, with a certain springy eagerness in gait, as though about to break into a run and with muscles rippling beneath the jacket or shirt or the honey-colored surface of his sun-tanned arms, this latter for rough diamonds, such as oil drillers and engineers and for playboys on the beach of Nassau.

It sounds easy, but you try it, and when the postman drops the story back you will realize why fictioneers get up to $3,000 a story, plus, in some cases, as much again for the movies.

Hollywood Speaks—

—By ROBBIN COONS

HOLLYWOOD—Screen tests . . . the birth of a new movie star . . . maybe. . . .

The "maternity ward" is a sound stage—and for all the forced lightness that everybody is displaying, it's pretty much like the operating amphitheater of a hospital. . . . The youngsters are light—light as the dialogue from "East Lynne." . . .

There are six of them here today. . . . Regional winners in a nation-wide contest. . . . That radio thing of Jesse Lasky's. . . . The finalists to be launched in pictures in a script called "Career." . . .

Filming the test is Cameraman Roy Hunt, directing is Jimmy Anderson. . . . They're both being kind, gentle, and easy. . . . And feeling. I know, like executioners leading the doomed to the scaffold. . . . To the torture chamber, rather.

"I wish somebody else had this job," says Jimmy Anderson, the softie. . . .

Off in a corner a young man is biting his nails. . . . Here is a girl awaiting her ordeal. . . . I try talking to her but she's in a trance. . . . On the rack now are Rachelle Germano (from San Francisco) and Lynn McKinlay (from Salt Lake City) . . . The camera and mike are going . . . They're reading lines from "Career." . . . Will they be the ones to read those lines, some day, for the picture? . . .

Only one of the half-dozen here today will any past screen experience is Rachelle Germano. More than a year ago she hit Hollywood. She got two days' work in a quickie, two weeks (without a line of dialogue) and in another, two days with one line to speak in a third picture. She worked a bit in an obscure stock company, and studied a while at the Pasadena school of the theater.

"But I had to eat," she says, "so I went back to San Francisco and got a night club job — check girl and cigaret girl."

There are the others. . . . Mary Jane Barnes, 18, born in Shawnee, Okla., a graduate of the Oklahoma City high school, never out of her state before. . . . McKinlay, 22, born on an Idaho farm, a radio actor and announcer on a Salt Lake station. . . . Monetta Eloyse Darnell, 17, Dallas Tex., high school girl, has done radio skits. . . . Jack Chase, 22, from Des Moines, an announcer on Iowa stations. . . . John McKnight, 24, from Washington, D. C., a statistician employed by the Farm Credit Administration.

Screen tests . . . and hope. . . .

For the tests the girls wear costumes from the RKO wardrobe department. A wardrobe attendant appears and tells them they may keep the garments for a later appearance. . . . And nobody says anything else but somehow this seems to be great news, pleasantly prophetic. . . .

The girl who's never been out of Oklahoma before smiles radiantly. . . . "That mean's we're all still in the running," she cries. "I must send a wire home. . . ."

Next month they'll all know. . . . One boy and one girl will win and get a movie contract, and make a picture. . . . But which of these youngsters will be happiest—say 10 years from now? You answer.

BRIDGE-LUNCHEON FINAL SOCIAL EVENT

Mansfield Federation of Women Arrange Function at Club House Thursday; Annual Tea and Meeting Planned for April.

WITH the end of the 1938-39 club year only a few weeks away, many Mansfield organizations are busily planning their final meetings, elections of officers, guest parties and strictly social functions. After a full season of cultural and educational events interspersed with a very few affairs of a frivolous nature, the Mansfield Federation of Women turns to plans for a luncheon-bridge.

Reservations for the affair, which will be held Thursday at 1 p. m., should be telephoned to the Women's Club by tomorrow evening, Mrs. Charles G. Brown announced, and all members should make up tables, she suggested.

The final meeting of the federation year will come April 11, when the annual tea and business meeting is held. At this time both officers and members of the board will be elected, and a dramatic program is also being planned, Mrs. E. J. Gilbert, president, announced.

Federation members and friends will recall that since late September the group has presented a talk on Home Modernizing by Miss Isabel Barry of Cleveland, a lecture on Denmark by Mrs. Herbert F. White, an address by A. B. Sachar, another by Dorothy Fuldheim, a talk by Miss Bhicoo Batlivala, a native of India, a display of oriental rugs with an accompanying talk, and a humorous lecture by Frank Speaight, English speaker, who gave readings from Dickens.

Mrs. Lester Redding, chairman of the social affairs committee, is in charge of Thursday's meeting, and Mrs. William Black and Mrs. Stanley Schiller are the other two women on the committee.

Mrs. Helen F. Stecker of Upper Sandusky, who is deputy grand matron of District No. 10, served as the inspecting officer last evening when the annual inspection of Ruth chapter, Order of the Eastern Star, was conducted at the Masonic temple.

There were 100 guests and 165 members in attendance at the session, when Mrs. Miriam Gross, worthy matron of Ruth chapter, presided. The matrons and patrons from all of the chapters in District No. 10 were present from Bucyrus, Galion, Crestline, Shelby, Bellville and Shiloh. Mrs. Marian Tossey of Ostrander, O., who is the deputy grand matron of District No. 11, and some of the members from her district were also present. Mrs. Bessie Speelman, the grand representative from California, who resides in Crestline was also an honored guest.

The temple was decorated with daffodils, ferns, palms and Easter lilies, when 11 candidates were initiated into the order. After the meeting, Miss Pearl Wierman, associate matron, and her committee served refreshments in the banquet hall. The luncheon tables were decorteed with rose and silver appointments. The next regular session of the lodge will be held on April 3.

—Advice—

Involved In Trying Affair

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX:

For four years we've gone together steadily. I'm a young man of 27 and she's a married woman of 48. At no time did I expect to marry her, and I would give a good deal to break up with her now, but she threatens me. Her husband will not give her a divorce, though he says she's no good.

They have had seven children, which doubtless influences his decision about the divorce. My parents have tried everything to break us up, but the woman is one step ahead of them all the time. She takes my money and leaves me practically broke. I certainly should like to break up this affair and know some nice girl. This woman is always on my trail.

A.

It looks to me as if you had been very, very unwise in drifting into an affair with a woman twenty-one years older than you are. You are not married to this person, and your letter fails to show that she has any legal hold over you. Consult a private lawyer if you can afford it. If not, go to the Legal Aid society, which will give you the proper advice for a minimum fee, or gratis, if you cannot afford to pay for it.

New Ideas For Job of Menu-Making

By ALICE LYNN BARRY

Here are some nice recipes which we hope will assist you in your menu-making. It is no joke to turn out three squares daily, day after day, and introduce variety without straining ye old budget! These recipes are not expensive although they look and taste as though they were.

Spinach Pancakes call for a tablespoon flour, teaspoon phosphate baking powder, three eggs, one cup cooked or canned spinach, pinch of salt. Sift flour, baking powder and salt together. Add eggs, beaten; add spinach, well drained. Heat butter in skillet and bake mixture like small pancakes. Turn carefully to brown lightly on either side. If desired, finely-chopped bacon may be added.

For a starter that will give a cachet to the simplest meal, dress up grapefruit. Halve large grapefruits, alllowing one-half to each serving. Remove seeds and core. Notch the edge, sprinkle with after-dinner mints (white "pillow mints") and garnish with green minted cherry.

Banana Muffins

Banana Bran Muffins offer another nice dresser-upper. The recipe requires one cup sifted flour, one-half teaspoon salt, three-fourths teaspoon soda, two tablespoons shortening, two cups thinly-sliced banana (two or three bananas), one-fourth cup sugar, one well-beaten egg, one cup all-bran, two tablespoons sour milk or buttermilk. Sift together the flour, salt and soda. Rub the shortening to a creamy consistency with the back of a spoon. Stir the sugar slowly into the shortening and continue stirring until light and fluffy. Add egg, all-bran and milk. Mix and let stand while slicing bananas. Add banana and mix well. Stir in dry ingredients, mixing only enough to dampen the flour. Bake in well-greased muffin tins in a 375 degree F. oven 30 to 35 minutes. Six large or 12 small muffins.

Stuffed Olive Dressing will lend a tang and a piquant flavor to the salad bowl. It requires one teaspoon each calt, dry mustard, granulated sugar, paprika, two tablespoons catsup, one-fourth teaspoons cayenne pepper, one cup oil, one-fourth cup vinegar and one three-ounce bottle stuffed olives, sliced. Mix all the dry ingredients and the catsup together. Beat well with a hand beater or an electric beater at high speed, then add the oil, one tablespoon at a time, beating well after each addition. Add vinegar gradually, beating all the while. Add olives and chill. Makes about one and one-half cups dressing.

Brazil-Mocha.

Brazil-Mocha ice cream is a superspecial ice cream. It is nice to dress up an ordinary meal or wind up a company affair. It takes one and one-half cups milk, two tablespoons ground coffee, one cup sugar, two egg yolks, one-fourth teaspoon salt, one and one-half cups heavy cream and one cup chopped Brazil nuts to make one quart. Heat milk with coffee in double boiler. Put half the sugar in heavy frying pan and stir until melted to a light brown syrup. Stir in remaining sugar. Strain coffee mixture through a cloth. Add caramel and stir over hot water until dissolved. Beat egg yolks with salt, and stir into hot mixture. Cook over hot water, stirring constantly until custard coats spoon. Add cream and nuts and pour into freezing trays; freeze from three to four hours.

My Neighbor Says:

The color your radiators are painted has a lot to do with the amount of radiant heat you derive from them. Color engineers say a fine coil radiator finished in walnut brown yields only as much radiant heat as a three coil radiator painted white or with one of the light aluminum finishes. All dark colors and cold colors such as greens and blues should be avoided in painting radiators. The warm colors or neutral shades including oyster whites, pale greys, dull, warm orange and yellow are best.

HOROSCOPE

For Wednesday, March 22.

A fairly lively and fortuitous state of affairs is predicted for this day, judging by the predominant lunar influences. While there may be some difficult or congested situations to be set free, there seems to be sound judgment and some innovations or fresh methods to break up the stagnation. A female of "uncertain age" may come to the rescue.

Those whose birthday it is may prepare for an interesting and prosperous year, although there may be delays, static conditions and other stubborn obstacles to cope with. Elderly females are safe to seek for assistance, and generally social domestic or romantic associations should prove happy.

A child born on this day may have a fair degree of talent, tenacity and ingenuity. Being rather socially inclined, sentimentaal and friendly, it may be disposed to lean on others.

Try some of the dwarf dahlias as annuals. They grow as easily as asters or zinnias.

Marriage Meddlers

By ADELE GARRISON

Continuation of "Married Comrades"

"Would you rather have me tell Mary of the little contretempts," I asked slowly, "since you will not see her again for several days?"

"Or weeks," he retorted bitterly. Then his face relaxed, and a boyish, relieved smile quirked his lips.

"Would you be willing to do that?" he asked. "I would be swell if you would."

"Consider it done," I told him with a mischievous smile. "I shall take the matter up with your wife as soon as I get back to the Lansfield, and you may be sure it will receive due consideration."

A reluctant smile rewarded my raillery, and rising from my chair I put a comradely hand on his shoulder.

"Cheer up, dear lad!" I adjured him. "Everything will be all right, I am sure. And now I'm going back to the nursery to see if Aunt Katharine has arranged for me to see her patient, and, if I may suggest it, you would better pack your belongings, for shortly after I finish talking to Queen Olga, I am sure I can telephone your father to come over. Then you won't delay him when you go back with him to the hotel."

"I can imagine that any delay would be most inadvisable," Noel said with a rueful grin. "He won't be in any complaisant mood, unless—"

He broke off short, and I laughed lightly.

"He may be in the best of all possible moods, Noel," I said, "if what Mr. Underwood predicts has any foundation. But all that is on the knees of the gods, so it is useless for us either to worry about it or to be unduly optimistic."

"You are the world's best, Aunt Madge," he told me, "and I know you'll square me with Mary."

"I don't think you'll need any squaring, Noel," I told him with a smile as I moved toward the door. "And I'll let you know as soon as I telephone your father about coming over, so you'll have time to prepare yourself for the meeting."

"I'll need preparation," he said grimly.

When I entered the nursery, Katharine put her finger to her lips, and I knew that Faith was asleep. I lowered my voice to a whisper and put the query uppermost in my mind.

"When can I see Queen Olga?" I asked.

"Whenever you wish," Katharine returned, also in muted tones. "I told her a little while ago that you wished to see her, and she said she would be ready to receive you any time after five minutes. It is more nearly ten now, so—"

She spread her hands expressively, and I put another question.

"Olina—Where is she?"

"Conspicuous by her absence," Katharine returned. "She wasn't in evidence while I was in the room, and I don't imagine you will see her when you go over to their suite. I imagine that after the wigging Olina received from her mother this morning, she'll be sulking in her tent the rest of the day, unless she has to perform some special service for her royal mother, who I'll wager is the world's most skilled feminine martinet."

"I'm inclined to agree with you," I told her, "so please weave all the charms you can while I'm gone. I shall need them.

BARCLAY ON BRIDGE

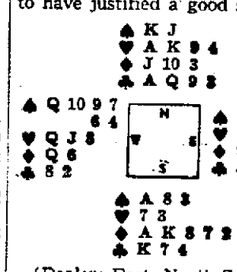
"The Authority on Authorities"

DON'T SHUT HIM UP

If you have such a big hand that your partner's opening bid makes a slam seem very probable, be careful that none of your bids along the way is of exactly game. Such a call by you may be dropped, especially if his own holding is merely strong enough to have justified a good sound initial call. In this kind of spot, if you have shown such great strenght that there is no chance of his dropping you short of game, some new suit bid at less than game level may be helpfully informative.



(Dealer: East. North-South vulnerable.)

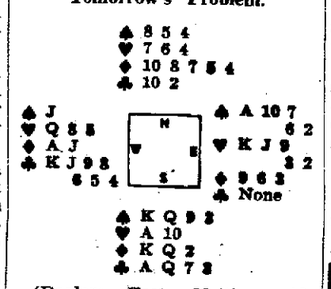
Lacking any such suit to bid, it is usually better to leap to a slam or a slam invitation, rather than making a call of exactly game.

After East's pass, South opened this deal with 1-Diamond. West made a psychic double and North redoubled. When this passed to West, he took himself out with 1-Spade. North then bid 2-Hearts, South 2-No trump and North 3-No trump, which South passed. When the declarer made a grand slam, by winning the spade finesse, the expected argument broke out between North and South.

North was the culprit. His 3-No trump bid risked the very pass it invited. After South's 2-No trump, North's best bid was 3-Clubs, which nobody but a deliberate traitor should pass. South after that should have bid 3-Diamonds, also temporizing and giving extra information.

The rest of it would depend on what slam conventions the side was using, if any. If none at all, North's natural call would be 6-No trump, and some players in the South position would take that to 7-No trump if they had eaten plenty of eggs for breakfast and felt both strong and lucky.

Tomorrow's Problem.



(Dealer: East. Neither side vulnerable.)

What bidding would you recommend on this deal, if in your right senses? What if not?

Dainty Blouses Add Crisp Touches To Suits

HUNDREDS of sheer white lingerie blouses are going to church with new spring suits on Easter morning. A crisp collar and whipped cream frills of eyelet embroidered organdy accent the white batiste blouse worn with a striped worsted suit at the left. The other blouse (also of white batiste) is trimmed with tucked organdy inserts and frivolous little lace frills.

The between-meal lunch is advisable for underweight or fast-growing children. It may include graham crackers and milk, fruit, simple cookies and fruit juices. In summer, fresh fruits or egg and milk drinks are suitable.

New Trend In Hair Styling

By MME QUI VIVE

There's no doubt that a brand new hair style is a-borning. It will not be standardized as coiffures have been in the past. Remember the first bowl cut. You will if you are in your forties. Recall the shingle, the wind blown, the long bob. We fell for each of them like a load of bricks. What is now developing is the more individual arrangement. Hair styled according to the material one has with which to work, according to the shape of the head, the features, the type of girl you are.

The new coiffure law is definitely this: show your ears and show your neck. Some stylists are cutting the hair fairly short, giving a permanent wave, dressing the back, sides and crown of the head in rolls or sculptured curls. The natural lines of the head must be defined. The coiffure must be close fitting, have no bounce. Or, if the arrangement does protrude here and there, it must be flattering to the features.

Combs are used a lot, so are hair ornaments designed for evening wear. Flowers, ribbons, feather do-dads are snaking plenty of money out of checking accounts. They are ravishingly beautiful, but must be precisely correct and precisely elegant or they will make a woman appear over-dressed. One must guard against that danger.

Mud spots on clothing should be allowed to dry thoroughly and then be brushed carefully. If this is not effective, sponge with soapy water if a fabric print, or sponge with a solution of alcohol and water.

Dishwashing hints for newlyweds: (1) carefully stack dishes in piles, (2) soak egg and milk dishes and silverware in cold water, (3) rinse sticky and greasy articles with warm water, (4) use plenty of hot water and soap suds, (5) wash glassware first, (6) silverware next, (7) then china and (8) finally, the pans.

Wite Preservers

Sodium fluoride is the best thing to help get rid of cockroaches. It is a fine white powder and may be obtained at most drug stores. Dust it around the kitchen and pantry and near the sink. It is poisonous, so keep it away from children and household pets.

Indians Weakened By Disintegration of Mound Staff

Mansfield Club Has 18 Players Under Contract

Report to Manager French In Findlay Next Month; School Planned on College Field.

By OSCAR RUHL, News-Journal Sports Editor.

THE personnel of the ball club that will represent Mansfield in the Ohio State league this year is very indefinite, but the squad which Manager Ray French will send through the initial drill on the college diamond in Findlay next month will not lack quantity. More can be said about the quality of the material later.

Eighteen ball players have already been put under contract by President Norman Cohen, a number of other talented aspirants are expected to be uncovered in a school to be conducted by the Mansfield manager in Findlay and the Cleveland Indians will send additional candidates to the camp before the training siege is completed.

Only one of the players under contract has had any professional experience, and, consequently, it is difficult to say how the team will line up.

Contracts of two of the players on the roster were turned over to Mansfield by the Indians.

Mansfield's affiliate will send Pete Rapol of Zanesville, an infielder, and Connell Zerman of Bellevue, an outfielder, to the Findlay training quarters.

Bradley Ok's Zerman

Scout Bill Bradley of the Cleveland staff speaks highly of Zerman, who throws and bats left handed, and regards him as one of the more promising younger prospects in the Cleveland chain.

Rapol, who was discovered on the Zanesville sandlots by "Buzz" Wetzel, sr., Indians' farm chieftain, is a 6-footer, and can play either second or shortstop.

The only player who has had any professional experience is Al Higgins of Detroit, a second sacker, who started out in the Coastal Plains league last season. He played less than a month, however, due to a leg injury.

Five other infielders are listed on the squad. They are Robert Campbell of Chester, W. Va., who can play either second or third; Donald Lebo of Trenton, Mich., a second baseman; Allen Southard of Wyandotte, Mich., a first baseman; Ellsworth Brown of Lincoln, Ill., a first baseman, and Christopher Thomas of Detroit, a shortstop. Thomas, incidentally, is a native of Italy.

Only three outfielders have been signed, but Cohen expects Cleveland to send Mansfield several gardeners before the season gets under way May 3. In addition to Zerman, the garden patrolmen are Joe Schuette of Toledo and Andrew Vida of Sugar Creek, Mo., whom Manager French will bring with him.

Two catchers are listed, but Cohen has had the promise of more receivers from Cleveland. Stanley Oleska of Wyandotte, Mich., who was picked up from the Doan school, and John Kulpinski of Detroit, who turned down a contract from the Boston Braves because of his desire to play in the mid-west. The Boston club had promised to option him to a southern league.

Signs Six Hurlers.

Cohen has signed only six pitchers as the Cleveland club will send Mansfield several boxmen from the Cedar Rapids and Springfield, O., clubs before the conclusion of training drills.

The pitchers under contract are Russell Hempel, a lefthander of Detroit; Charles Bruce of Lincoln, Ill., Dale Taylor of West Salem, who hurled at Ohio State a couple of years ago, George Laurila, who pitched in the Northern Michigan semi-pro league last season; Daniel Macie of Toledo, who is three inches taller than six, and Leon Maloney of Palmyra, Mich. All are right handers except Hempel and Taylor.

Pitchers and catchers will report to Manager French at the Findlay camp Friday, April 14, and the outfielders and infielders will join the squad on the following Wednesday.

The squad will be brought to Mansfield as soon as the Fairground park is ready for play, which will probably be a few days before the scheduled opener, according to Cohen.

Wins City Gun Title

Mansfield Club Takes Fifth, Deciding Match.

The Mansfield Rifle and Pistol club successfully concluded its title bid by defeating the Richland Gasco marksmen, 1387 to 1353, on the winner's range in the fifth and deciding match of a series to determine the city indoor rifle championship.

The Mansfield club, which lost only one match in the series, was again led by Fred Sells, who shot a perfect 100 score from prone, 95 out of a possible 100 from kneeling and 92 from standing for a 287 aggregats. Dale Arnold was next high in the individual figures with a 279 score.

Lee Arntz was high in the Richland club's scoring with a 279 aggregate, while Diller came through with a 274.

High Average Bowler Low

Kermit Maurer Gets Only 554 Pins in A. B. C.

CLEVELAND—(INS)—Leaders in the current American Bowling Congress championships today seemed assured of comparative safety until next Friday when when another squad of regulars opens the final drive of major league pin talent.

Waves of booster quintets move into Cleveland Public hall this week, making the last appearance of the under-851-average class.

On today's card is Kermit Maurer, Syracuse youngster who holds fourth place in the ABC standings for the past decade. He has to pick up a flock of strikes in the minor events to keep his 201.9 average. Maurer bowled with a minor league "sociable" team last night and got away to a 554 start.

Jimmy Smith, grand old man of bowling, bobbed up in the minor events yesterday to spring a 657 series on the younger generation.

Jim Agresta, of Elizabeth, N. J., reached 1898 to go out in front of the all-events one point ahead of Dan Burden of Lancaster, O.

Signs Semi-Finals For Friday's Show

Steve Budynas of Schenectady, N. Y., will meet Tommy Marvin of Oklahoma City, Okla., in the semi-final of Friday's mat card in the Armory. Former pupil of the immortal Pinkie Gardner, Budynas is a familiar figure to midwestern and eastern fans.

Budynas will wrestle Marvin for two falls, with a 45-minute time limit augmenting the feature clash between Frank Sexton of Sedalia, O., and Leon Grandovitch of Russia. The card will be thoroughly heavyweight, matchmaker Tim Nolan indicating that the 30-minute opener will also be in that division.

One of the strongest men in the world, Grandovitch will likely be favored to throw the king of Ohio heavies.

Tickets for the Friday attraction are on sale at Hunt's News depot and Ringside cafe.

OREGON, OKLAHOMA FIGHT FOR RIGHT TO FACE OSU

SAN FRANCISCO—(AP)—University of Oregon's Pacific coast conference champions clash with a powerful University of Oklahoma team tonight to decide a western division winner to play Ohio State at Chicago March 27 for the National Collegiate Athletic Association championship.

Oregon whipped University of Texas, 56 to 41 at last night's semi-finals and Oklahoma, co-champion of the Big Six conference, defeated Utah State Agricultural college, 50 to 39.

GUN EXPERT TO SPEAK AT GROTTO HALL TONIGHT

Claude Parmelee, gun expert of the Winchester Arms company, will be the speaker at the meeting of the Richland County Fish and Game association in the Baku Grotto hall, King building, at 8 p. m. today. There will be no admission charge and the public is invited.

Parmelee, who has been brought to the city by the Martin Hardware company, will tell of his experiences as a big game hunter and show motion pictures.

Adam Brandt Rolls 644 in Club League

Quay of Elks' Loop Tallies Only Other 600.

The Club Handicap league which usually produces a number of hefty 600 totals found the going tough on the Meder alleys last night. Only one 600 was turned in last night, and it was registered by Adam Brandt of the Mansfield Athletic club, who blasted out a 644 while leading his teammates to a 2739 total, minus handicap, and a clean sweep over the Baku Grotto, which whipped up a 2784.

The three wins enabled the Athletics to climb within three games of first place, held by the Schoolmasters, who took two games from the American Legion. The Legionnaires came through with a 2732 count.

In the other matches, the Tracy & Avery club added a pair of wins at the expense of the Optimists, Page Dairys took two tilts from the Liederkranz club, J. A. C. club won a pair from the Kiwanians and Mansfield Savings Bank took two games from the Commercial Managers.

Only eight games separate the front-running Schoolmasters from the ninth-place Tracy & Avery and Liederkranz clubs.

Oscar Walters' Barbers, led by Fritz Vogel's 592, paced the scoring in the Commercial C league with a 2705 total, and Quay came through with a 602 to lead the No. 1 team in the Galion Elks league to a 2738 series.

Only Two Still Outside Tepee

Averill, Hudlin Have Yet to Come to Terms.

NEW ORLEANS, La.—(U.P.)—The signing of Lyn Lary, Cleveland Indian shortstop, today left only two of the Tribe outside the contract tepee—Outfielder Earl Averill and Pitcher Willis Hudlin.

Hudlin's hold-out caused more concern than Averill's as the Tribe is well supplied with high-grade outfielders but definitely needs Hudlin's experience and cunning on the mound.

Lary's capitulation to terms was only a start of the relief of his worries because now he must battle Jimmy Webb to regain a regular infield post. Webb's sensational fielding and timely hitting at short have given him at least a temporary lease on the job.

Johnny Humphries whose wildness aided the Indians in booting a game to the Philadelphia Athletics last Staurday will assay a comeback today against the New Orleans Pelicans of lower baseball classification than the A's.

Johnny has been laboring to acquire a trickier curve ball and blamed this for his inability to locate the plate last week.

Another Pitching Johnny, Mr. Allen of the famous sore arm announces he will be ready to test his renovated salary whip in a week or ten days.

BEE'S LONG ISLANDERS FAVORED OVER LOYOLA

NEW YORK—(U.P.)—The east will be favored slightly over the west when Long Island University and Loyola of Chicago meet tomorrow night in the final of the second annual New York Writers' invitation basketball tournament.

The L. I. U. Blackbirds were the choice because they were regarded generally stronger than Brooklyn's St. John's five that extended Loyola into overtime before bowing 51-46 in the semi-finals before a capacity house of 18,206 in Madison Square Garden last night. Long Island vanquished Bradley Tech of Peoria 36-32.

AKRON FIRESTONES WIN NATIONAL LEAGUE TITLE

OSHKOSH, Wis.—(AP)—The Akron Firestones held the championship of the National basketball league today. Winners of the eastern title, the Ohio team last night defeated the Oshkosh All-Stars, Western division champions, 37 to 30 in the fifth and deciding game of the playoffs. Akron, paced by Guard Osburn with 10 points, had a 17-13 margin at the half and led 28-16, as the final quarter started.

SOLIDAY LEADS TEAM

BELLVILLE—Kenneth Soliday has been elected manager of the Bellville Independent baseball team this year.

DAYTON CLUB ACQUIRES DUDLEY LEE AS PILOT

DAYTON—(AP)—The new playing-manager of the Dayton baseball club of the Mid-Atlantic league is Dudley Lee. He played shortstop for Portland in the Pacific Coast league the last two seasons and also has been in the Major leagues and the American association.

MOOSE BOWL WOOSTER

The Moose No. 1 bowling team will meet the Harris Paints at the Meder alleys at 9 p. m. today. The Wooster team already holds two wins over the Meder Recreation team this season.

LEAHY ON PROBATION

CLEVELAND—(AP)—Howard Leahy, 19, state scholastic mile running champion who confessed 50 thefts, today began a three-year probation period. The youth, who took women's shoes in nearly all the thefts, told Julge Walter P. Walther "I believe I have learned my lesson."

PITCHER TO MANAGE

PORTSMOUTH, O.—(AP)—Joe Davis, 24-year-old pitcher, today took over managership of the Portsmouth Red Birds in the Mid-Atlantic baseball league. Davis managed Cambridge, Md., of the Eastern Shore league last summer.

Pitt Coach

BOWSER . . . new coach.

Bowser Named to Post Vacated by Jock Sutherland; School Plans Probe.

PITTSBURGH—(AP)—The mantle of two men who for two decades made the University of Pittsburgh's football teams a power on the nation's collegiate gridirons—Glenn S. (Pop) Warner and Dr. John Bain (Jock) Sutherland—fell today to a student of both, Charles W. Bowser.

Bowser, called "Chisel" by his closest friends since his high school days at Johnstown, Pa., was named last night by the board of trustees that at the same three-hour closed session appointed a committee of seven to investigate "all phases" of the stormy situation at Pitt.

Starred at Pitt.

The new head coach left high school in April of his senior year, 1917, to go overseas with the ambulance service. He entered Pitt in 1919 and displayed equal adaptability in the classroom and on the gridiron. As honor student, he played guard, tackle, quarterback and center under Warner.

Graduated in 1923, he went to Grove City, Pa., college, later becoming head coach, served three seasons as an assistant under Sutherland at Pitt, then went to Bowdoin as head coach. He gave up football after the 1934 season to devote full time to his (insurance) business here, but returned to the Pitt staff in 1934. He resigned as first assistant to Sutherland after the 1937 season, remaining out of the game last year.

In naming the committee of seven, the board acceded to a request of Chancellor John G Bowman of the university and Mayor C. D. Scully, himself a trustee, who in an open letter asked that the board try to remove "any cause of criticism."

While the board met, Don F. Saunders resigned as secretary of the General Alumni association, declaring that he had became "increasingly unsympathetic to some policies of the university administration." Sutherland resigned because, he said, the system of athletic administration "had resulted in conditions which, for me, are intolerable."

Has to Name Staff.

Bowser's first task will be to recruit a coaching staff and start belated spring practice. All of Sutherland's assistants were relieved of their duties after he left and only two members of the 1938 varsity remain. Halfback Dick Cassiano and Tackle Dick Konetsky.

Bowser was given a three-year contract at a reputed salary of $7,500, while Sutherland's salary was generally understood here to have been $13,000.

Friendly House Plans Foul Shooting Contests.

The first of two annual foul shooting tournaments at the Friendly House will be staged at 6:30 p. m. Thursday. Thursday's event will be for the senior class, which includes players over 15 years of age.

The junior contest will be held Monday at the same time. Participants in each class will be allowed 25 shots, with trophies being awarded to the winners.

Pairings Made For Cage Meet

2 of 5 Mansfield Teams in Tourney to Play First Games Friday at Y.

THE three-day schedule of The News-Journal-Y. M. C. A. Gold Medal Independent basketball tournament will get under way at the Y. M. C. A. Friday night with three games.

Play will not be resumed until the following Thursday, with the semi-finals and finals on schedule Friday, March 31.

Four In Tourney.

Five Mansfield quintets will participate in the elimination. Ashland and Marion will send two clubs to the Y. M. C. A., and Galion has entered one.

The Mansfield teams entered are the Yuncker Sports, City Class A league champions; Westinghouse Electrics and Elks of the same league, Blue Goose Sohioans of the Friendly House Senior league and Johns Park, which played independently.

Marion will be represented by Earl's Dairys and Ralph's Snappy Service, while the Bobcats and Merchants will come from Ashland. The other entrant is Beam's Gulf Oils of Galion.

The three-game program Friday will be opened by a tussle between the Blue Goose entry and Ashland Merchants at 7:30 p. m., the Galion quintet will face the Elks in the second tilt an hour later and the Yuncker team and Earl Dairys close the opening bill at approximately 9:30 p. m.

The Thursday, March 30, program will pit the winners of the Yuncker-Marion and Blue Goose-Ashland Merchants games against each other at 7:30 p. m., Ralph's Snappy Service of Marion against Johns Park of Mansfield at 8:30 and Westinghouse Electrics against the Ashland Bobcats at 9:30.

Closes Tournament.

Semi-final games will start at 7 p. m., the follwing evening, with the consolation finals billed at 9 p. m., and the titular finals at 10.

An admission of only 10 cents will be charged for the games.

Golf Course Group Elects Columbusite President.

The Ohio golf course superintendent's association elected Lawrence Huber of the Wyandot country club at Columbus president to succeed Don Boyd of the Akron Portage club at the annual meeting at the chamber of commerce yesterday, attended by members of the profession from Ohio and neighboring states.

Fred Burkhardt of Cleveland's Westwood course was named vice president and John McCoy of the State University country club, secretary-treasurer. An honorary life membership was conferred on Fritz Howell, Associated Press sports writer.

The association's annual interstate equipment show was scheduled May 22 at the Brookside club in Linworth, Columbus suburb.

Charles Jarman of the Westbrook country club presided at the meeting.

Will Bill Be 1939 Grid Hero?

While football is an outdated subject now, all followers of the pigskin pastime look with interest toward the 1939 season and the showing of one young man, a sophomore at Northwestern U. His name? Bill De Correvant. Yes, the same Bill who received oodles and oodles of rave notices two years ago while playing for a Chicago high school. Bill is shown in Northwestern togs for the first time with his brother, Bud, right. Bud is only a freshman.

First games in the playoff to determine the Class A Church league second round title will be staged at the Y. M. C. A. Wednesday night, Don D. Cram of the Y staff announced today. The regular season closed last week with four teams tied for the lead.

Wednesday's games will send Mayflower Congregational against First M. E. at 7 p. m., and First Lutheran, first half champion, against Park Avenue Baptist at 8 p. m. The date of the finals is indefinite.

Bastien Sent To Reds' Farm

Former Tiffinite One of Five Shipped to Tribe.

TAMPA, Fla.—(U.P.)—The pruning knife hit the spring training squad of the Cincinnati Reds with a large slice today and five players were optioned to Indianapolis of the American Association, a Cincinnati farm.

They were Infielders Don Lang, Lindsay Brown and Einar Sorenson, Outfielder Kermit Lewis and Pitcher Ed Bastien, formerly of Tiffin. All left camp today to join Ray Schalk's Indians at Bartow, Fla.

Johnny Vander Meer, the most talked of pitcher in baseball last year, may be on the sidelines April 17 when the Reds open their season at home against Pittsburgh.

Double No-Hit Johnny still suffers from the effect of his last appendicitis attack and his attending physician has recommended to General Manager Warren Giles that Vander Meer remain in the hospital until Friday and then rest for several days away from the ball park.

The delay in Johnn's conditioning may prevent him from taking a regular turn on the mound at the start of the season. However, Manager Bill McKechnie had indicated every consideration will be shown the star fast-baller to have him ready to face the Pirates in the opener.

The rest of the Reds stayed away from the training field along with Johnny yesterday but move into action today against the Boston Bees at Bradentown. Whitey Moore and Bucky Walters were slated to divide the pitching duties.

Paul Derringer, wheelhorse of the Red pitching staff, has informed McKechnie of his recovery from a flu attack. Big Paul should be ready for a Grapefruit league assignment within a few days.

Hold Boston To Six Blows

Ruffing, Pearson Stingy as Yankees Triumph.

SEBRING, Fla. — (INS) — The world champion New York Yankees called on their farm team, the Newark Bears, at Sebring today for a training camp game. Lefty Gomez checked into camp from New York and Red Rolfe and Frankie Crosetti were almost ready to don fighting togs. Charley Ruffing and Monte Pearson held the Boston Bees to six hits in winning 6 to 8 on Buddy Rosar's triple in the tenth.

CLEARWATER, Fla.—(INS)—A reported disposition on the part of the Brooklyn Dodgers management to replace Dolph Camilli with Bert Haas, a youngster, faded today after Camilli ran off with the hitting honors in yesterday's game with the St. Louis Cardinals which the Red Birds won 7 to 5. Camilli batted three home runs over the right field fence, bringing in three of the Dodgers' five tallies which were not enough to win.

LOS ANGELES—(INS)—If history repeats itself, Manager Gabby Hartnett was thinking today that it would be a good thing if the history of yesterday's victory by the Chicago Cubs over the Angels of Los Angeles repeated itself regularly during the baseball season. The score was 9-4 and was featured by two Cub home runs, each coming with bases loaded. Billy Herman knocked in the first four in the fifth, and Phil Cavaretta duplicated the feat in the seventh. Bill Lee in his season mound debut, was well nigh perfect.

HOLLYWOOD, Calif. — (U.P.) — The hitting of Eric McNair appeared today to have clinched him the job of subbing at the Chicago White Sox second base until regular Jack Hayes is completely recovered. McNair drove in two runs with a triple yesterday as the Sox trimmed the Pittsburgh Pirates 11 to 4.

LAKE CHARLES, La.—(U.P.)—Manager Connie Mack concentrated today on Outfielder Dee Miles, the last remaining holdout on the Philadelphia roster, following acceptance of terms by Pitcher Leroy Earl Parmelee, who was expected to report within a few hours. Miles has held out for a slice of the $25,000 the A's paid Chattanooga for him. The Athletics downed Fort Worth, 8 to 2, yesterday.

OHIO TRAINER DIES

COLUMBUS—(INS)— Frank H. Gorton, 62, assistant athletics trainer at Ohio State died of a heart attack while in Lexington, Va., with the Ohio State basketball team.

Allen's Future Marked

Talbot Doubts Whether Feller, Harder Can Keep Tribe in Title Race.

By GAYLE TALBOT

NEW ORLEANS—(AP)—A two-day study of the Cleveland Indians has convinced me they will need plenty of luck to finish as high in the coming American league race as they did in the last, when they wound up third after buckling in the latter stages.

I'm pretty certain I saw three clubs in Florida—New York, Boston and Detroit—that will take the Indians' measure. Their once great pitching staff is beginning to fall apart, and they still are inadequate at second base and shortstop. Oscar Vitt, their manager, is a lot quieter than he was a year ago.

"They've Lost Allen."

The Indians for the past several seasons have been able to count upon Mel Harder, Johnny Allen and Bob Feller to give them brilliant pitching on about three days out of four. This was a truly fine "big three." But now it looks to me like they've lost Allen, and that's a blow they can't survive.

Allen, you might recall, hurt his arm pitching in the last all-star game at Cincinnati after having set a phenomenal record for the first half of the season. He wasn't worth a cent to the club after that, dropping something like eight out of nine starts. During the winter they slit open his elbow and removed one of those "spurs" that have become so fashionable with our tossers.

For a week he's been trying to limber the wing up slowly, using a halting, half-hearted little motion that brought a lump to my throat. Even if by some miracle the wing finally comes back completely, Allen won't be ready to pitch before the first of May, and then only in relief roles for a while. By that time I'm afraid the American league parade will have swept on past the Injuns.

Harder still is a great pitcher, and I think the coming season will be the one in which the "kid," Bobby Feller, finally establishes himself alongside the Johnsons, the Alexanders and the Mathewsons. But it takes more than two pitchers to keep a club up there nowadays.

"I've finally got Feller using a change of pace," said Vitt. "That was the last thing he needed to make him a complete pitcher. Wait until you see those batters breaking their backs on his slow one."

The team's veteran shortstop, Lyn Lary, a holdout, finally pulled into camp yesterday and signed his 1939 contract, but his position seems to be occupied by Jimmy "Skeeter" Webb of Meridian, Miss. Webb is the frail-looking but sure-fielding player who was taken away from the St. Louis Cardinals in that general housecleaning by Commissioner Landis just a year ago.

Could Use Heffner.

Indian officials professed indifference to the whereabouts of their hold-out outfielder, Earl Averil. They only deny most emphatically that they are trying to trade him to the St. Louis Browns for Don Heffner, though I don't see why, for they certainly could use Heffner at second base. As it is, they must depend upon Odell Hale again.

With five outfielders in camp such as Jeff Heath, Ben Chapman, Bruce Campbell, Julius Solters and Roy Weatherly, the Indians can struggle along very nicely without Averill, even though he hit .330 last year.

HULL LIMPS AS STATE PREPARES FOR FINALS

COLUMBUS—(INS)— Although Jimmy Hull, ace forward, was suffering from a sprained ankle, Coach Harold Oslen was optimistic today about Ohio State University's chances for victory in the finals of the N. C. A. A. basketball tournament at Northwestern University Saturday night.

Hull sprained his right ankle in the waning moments of the eastern sectional final against Villanova last Saturday night and it has been bothering him since that time. Despite the fact that Jimmy is limping," Olsen said, "I expect him to be in shape for Saturday's game."

'Bill McKechnie's Eyes Are Twinkling'—Graham

Reds Are Definitely Out to Win This Season; Get Ready to Play for Keeps From Start.

By DILLON GRAHAM

TAMPA, Fla.—(AP)—Mild Bill McKechnie, who looks more like a deacon than a baseball manager, was taking his ease in the cool of the evening as I tried to make him confess that his Cincinnati Reds should win the National league flag.

But Wily Will doesn't care for shaky limbs and he wouldn't climb on. Besides, Will never bets on the seventh at Santa Anita. He wants a sure thing before he lays his money or gives his opinion. Honest, Will.

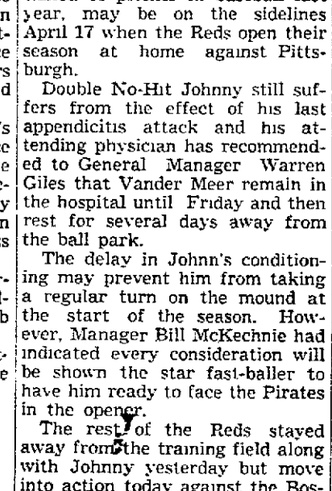
"A manager would be a liar to come out in March and say his team would win the pennant in September," Will said. But there was a twinkle in his eye. Eyes don't twinkle when there's any worry hovering around.

McKechnie thinks the Reds may have as good a chance as any other club to win the flag. They're definitely out to win, this year. Will is not fiddling around with many rookies this spring. He's pretty well heeled. He is getting his boys ready to play for keeps from the start.

He thinks he has a pretty fair second-baseman in Linus Frey and a good third-baseman in Bill Werber, new addition. He thinks more highly of them than do most rival National league managers.

Otherwise the Reds are going to stand pat, with the exception of Jimmy Wilson as a reserve catcher and maybe a couple of young pitchers like Gene Thompson from Columbia, S. C., and Red Barrett from Syracuse.

"That Thompson looks good to me," says McKechnie. And when a pitcher looks good to Bill you know that one thing he's sure to have is control.



McKECHNIE . . "eyes don't twinkle when there's any worry hovering around."

Barrett had a 16-and-3 record with Syracuse last year.

"Johnny Vander Meer is going to be a better pitcher than he was last year," Will says. "And Whitey Moore ought to have a good year. My goodness, but he's got lots of stuff. I wish he could swap off some of that stuff he has for a little more control."

McKechnie believes the real difference between the Reds of this year and those of last year will be Lee Grissom. The lean left-hander was out most of last season, first with a sore arm and later with a sprained ankle, suffered when he got a sudden notion to steal second base for no reason at all.

If Grissom is at his best, well, McKechnie will be glad to reserve your World series seats personally. That is, if you know Will.

Believes Williams Will Be 'Rookie of Year'

By GAYLE TALBOT

TAMPA, Fla. — (AP) — Having stuck out my neck to the extent of picking Cincinnati to win the National league flag, I might as well go ahead and name you the rookie of the year, the one most likely to star from his first day in the big show and bring new color to the game.

I take Ted Williams, the loose-jointed kid from Minneapolis who will open the season in right field for the Boston Red Sox. Maybe it's a hunch, but I take him over Detroit's Fred Hutchinson and Frank Croucher, the Yankees' Charlie Keller and Joe Gallagher, the Cardinals' Tom Sunkel, and all the rest.

Ted, who hit .366 and flavored his efforts with 43 home runs last year, has more than mechanical ability. He is a rare young bird, destined to become a character around the ball lots. There's an aura of greatness about him, tinged slightly with goofiness, and the fans are going to love him.

"Just think," he said the other day. "I'm going to see cities like New York and Chicago. That'll be an education in itself, even if I wasn't making money. Hell, a fellow can always pick up a dollar. You know, I'd play right field and center field both in those exhibition games if Mr. Cronin would let me."

Hutchinson, Detroit's prize young pitcher, isn't saying much. He has been put in an awkward spot, both by the great publicity he has received and by the repeated charge of scouts and rival coast league players that "he hasn't got a thing." He obviously would be a sucker to start arguing with his critics. He only says, quietly: "That's what they say," and goes on getting his arm in shape.

I watched him closely as he pitched in an inter-camp game, trying my best to figure out how he won 23 games last season. He has only average speed, a good curve and fine control, but he handles himself with the assurance of a veteran. I noticed that just as he delivers the ball his arm gives a peculiar sort of "fluttery" motion, but I don't know whether that's important. Probably not.

It's a shame that Japhet Lynn won't remain around to pitch for Detroit after the season starts. A rodeo performer in the off-season, Japhet is up from Columbus, where he took part in 50 games last year, mostly as a relief pitcher. Japhet was asked if he had pitched any no-hit games.

"No," he said, "but it's only because I'm superstitious. I could of had several, but each time I'd get to the ninth without a hit against me I would lay one in there easy and let somebody smack it. I notice these fellows that pitch no-hitters never amount to much afterwards, and I don't want that to happen to me."

For a reported $25,000, Bill Werber, veteran third baseman of the Philadelphia Athletics, goes to the Cincinnati Reds to replace Lews Riggs at the Cincinnati hot corner. Werber, who is one of the fastest men in the big leagues, hit .292 in 1937 but fell to .259 last year.

Couple of Hand Springs Enough to Ready Tony.

NEW YORK — (INS) — "All I need is a couple of handsprings and a walk around the block to be in shape to fight Joe Louis right now," Tony Galento said today as he prepared to stand a physical examination before the New York Boxing commission to determine whether he will be granted a license for his heavyweight title challenge in June.

Manager Joe Jacobs shared Galento's belief that the commission could find nothing wrong with the portly New Jersey barkeep, and that he would be certified for the championship tussle.

"Galento's personal physician and examining doctors in five states have passed Galento since that attack of pneumonia last summer," Jacobs said. "We have nothing to worry about."

"OUR CREDITORS ARE PACIFIED, OUR CREDIT RATING FORTIFIED. THRU CITY LOAN, WE HOPE YOU'LL NOTE WE'VE REALIZED OUR DREAMS." UNQUOTE

"One night my wife and I sat down and totaled up our debts; also the amount we had to pay on them each month. I owed $600 altogether—no wonder my pay check went so fast.
"I stopped in The City Loan to talk the matter over. Their simple loan plan appealed to the Scotch in me. I took out a loan, paid up everything, and found that one easy payment each month left me a lot more money for the things my wife and I have always wanted."

Don't Get a Loan until you investigate Colonial's money saving rates. For example, you save $13.83 when you borrow $200, with 20 months to repay, and you save $27.25 when you borrow $300, with 20 months to repay.

Remember You Save on loans over $100 up to $300 because our charge is ⅓ less than legal rate and in addition 10% of the cost is refunded in cash monthly, if payment is made promptly.

It's Easy to Borrow, just call at our office, answer a few simple questions, then if a loan is agreed upon, you sign the papers and the money is yours. (In most cases the money can be procured while you wait.)

BRISK BUYING LIFTS LEADERS 1 TO 3 POINTS

Worries Over European War Dangers Subside in Mart; Bonds Also Advance.

(By Associated Press)

NEW YORK—Buyers got behind the stock market today and lifted selected issues 1 to 3 points.

While worries over European war dangers seemed to have subsided a bit, many commission house customers were said to be keeping commitments light pending more assurance peace would be preserved.

Prominent on the forward jaunt were U. S. Steel, Bethlehem, Chrysler, General Motors, American Telephone, Douglas Aircraft, Montgomery Ward, U. S. Rubber, Westinghouse, Kennecott and Consolidated Edison.

Bonds accompanied stocks to higher ground. Commodities were a trifle mixed.

Market observers derived some comfort from indications last week's freight loadings, based on early reporting roads, were up more than seasonally to a new high for the year of around 600,000 cars.

Helpful were figures of the Federal Reserve Member Banks disclosing another jump in commercial, industrial and agricultural loans.

ORDERS RURAL SCHOOL MERGER

State Acts in Two-Year-Old County Wrangle, Calls for Immediate Action.

the center of the consolidation dispute since 1936.

"It is almost certain that the Adario high school will not be continued as a recognized high school," Dietrich's letter said. "For several years this school has been on our conditional list but the time has come when action must follow."

Residents of the Adario district have balked repeatedly at attempts of the county board to consolidate their high school with the Union high school in Weller township, contending that they had a right to keep their school as the center of community interests.

The Adario high school's first grade charter was revoked about two years ago, but the school was permitted to operate temporarily when a number of the parents in the community protested.

Because of the small enrollment of the school, the county board estimated that it annually costs about $200 per pupil to maintain the school. That figure is much higher than the state department of education permits and it was for that reason that the merger was ordered.

Most of the opposition to a consolidated program has come from the Butler township district, located in the extreme northeast corner of the county.

In addition to their argument that loss of their school would disrupt community activities, they contend that it is too great a distance to transport pupils to the Union district north of Mansfield.

Previous proposals for consolidation of the Butler, Bloomingrove and Union districts have called for a new building near the center of the entire area to accommodate all of the high school pupils.

Voters in the Union district turned down a proposed bond issue for the building at two elections last fall.

BRITAIN'S PLAN TO STOP HITLER STRIKES SNAG

Rumania, Threatened by Nazis, Frowns on Possibility of Becoming Battleground.

World war and given to Lithuania. Under Lithuanian rule, Memel gained semi-autonomy, but in recent years has been the scene of intense Nazi agitation for reincorporation with the reich. Nazi partisans have gained control of the Memel parliament and have openly demanded return of the territory to Germany. Berlin, meanwhile, has made it clear that the Memel situation as it now exists is regarded as an "impossible" one.)

British circles expect the proposed declaration against further German "aggression" in Europe to be ready within 48 hours. It will embody a stern warning regarding any further German action against non-German areas, such as Rumania.

There were reports that Chancellor Hitler, for the time being, has deferred any plans he may have had for marching into Rumania in view of the opposition the seizure of Czechoslovakia has aroused.

Nevertheless, the future of Rumania is still a matter of keen concern, particularly in view of reports that a pact turning over the nation's oil supplies to Germany will be signed today or tomorrow.

Tells of French Pact.

In this connection, the London Daily Express reported today that Hitler's coup in Czechoslovakia, where he established protectorates over Bohemia, Moravia and Slovakia, was carried out to counteract an alleged secret pact under which King Carol agreed to turn over his nation's oil supply to France.

Authorities said the proposed anti-Nazi declaration will announce the intention of the nations signing it to maintain peace through frequent consultation and to take mutual action to safeguard their interests in the event of any unprovoked attack, aggression or expansion by the reich.

It also will voice the condemnation of the participating nations of Germany's destruction of Czechoslovakia as a sovereign state. Later, it is expected, the declaration will be followed by concrete measures of military cooperation and eventually by some sort of international conference.

Expect Duce to Bare Demands on France Soon.

ROME—(U.P.)—Fascists appeared today to be preparing Italy for announcement by Premier Benito Mussolini next Sunday of the government's demands against France in the Mediterranean.

"Mussolini will make known Italy's new goals" in his speech in connection with the 20th anniversary of Fascism, the newspaper Il Resto Del Carlino at Bologna said in an article by Cacamica Nera, one of the ultra-Fascist spokesmen.

The conviction was growing that the premier would make clear Italy's position as a result of Germany's seizure of Czechoslovakia.

Mussolini is expected to discuss the speech with the Fascist grand council, which meets tonight.

Mussolini will preside at tonights' meeting of the council, supreme body of the Fascist hierarchy.

Mussolini will later send a message to his assembled blackshirts, and it was believed that it might give at least an intimation of the nature of Italy's "natural aspirations" to be followed by a full declaration on Sunday.

Daladier Issues Army Decree, Spurs Industry.

PARIS—(U.P.)—Premier Edouard Daladier, acting under emergency powers, announced today that the class of army conscripts due for release in April would be held with the colors. At the same time he put war industries on a 60-hour a week basis to ensure a big increase in production.

As President Albert Lebrun reached England for a four day state visit to King George, Daladier moved rapidly to strengthen the country's position in view of the dangerous European situation.

By his order that April conscripts were to remain under the colors, he will increase the army by 90,000 men and the Maginot will be strengthened. But further, he increased the permanent army staff by 422 officers, to a total of 31,060, and added 2,500 noncommissioned officers. He increased the length of the training period for reservists from 15 to 40 days from enlisted men and from 21 to 50 days for officers.

As a compensation to organized labor for the increase in the working week, the government provided a bonus of 10 per cent for wages between the 40th and 45th working hours each week, and an addition of five per cent for wages between the 46th and 60th hour.

Jobless men on relief rolls were ordered to take jobs in war factories.

NAZIS UNLEASH NEW ATTACKS

Threats to Renounce Anglo-German Naval Treaty Made in Press Blasts.

sary, or "revision" in its attitude toward Britain.

The booming counter-attack appeared unmistakable in press threats of renunciation of the 1935 Anglo-German naval treaty.

At the same time German newspapers featured that "Italy steadfastly is on the side of Germany" although there has been no usual announcement of telegraphed congratulations from Premier Mussolini to Chancellor Hitler.

A government spokesman was inclined to minimize such absence, declaring that it had "no significance and certainly should not be interpreted as a sign of disturbance of axis unity. He (Mussolini) may have expressed his best wishes in another way."

After anschluss (the absorption of Austria) and Sudetenland (former Czechoslovak area) Mussolini was quick to give his sign of axis solidarity.

Japs Congratulate.

Another anti-comintern partner, Japan, wasted no time in extending reich congratulations last week.

As a result there was speculation whether Hitler's newest conquest sat as well with Mussolini as did previous ones.

Voelkischer Beobachter headed a Rome dispatch with an excerpt from Giornale D'Italia that "Italy stands fast to the axis in spirit and with weapons."

Deutsche Diplomatisch politische information declared that the "call to the German ambassadors in London and Paris to report to Berlin and the rejection of British-French protests (over Czech's annexation) is not a mere formality."

"The battle challenge of the British empire is understood in Germany," commented Deutsche Allegemeine Zeitung, which prides itself on a strong foreign editorial policy.

Foreign diplomatic quarters, meantime, felt tacit understanding was reached yesterday between Juozas Urbsys, Lithuanian foreign minister, and Joachim Von Ribbentrop, German foreign minister, for uncontested early return of Memelland to the reich.

Germans, as in the case of early developments in Czechoslovakia, prefer to take the view for the present that the Memel issue is an international one between the Mellanders and the Lithuanian government.

The Memelland diet meets Saturday, however, and foreign observers feel signs point to a vote to "return home" to the reich.

Rome-Berlin Axis Remains Intact, Claim.

BERLIN—(U.P.)—The Rome-Berlin axis held fast today despite rising opposition among European democracies to Chancellor Hitler's expansionist aims.

Proof that German-Italians relations have suffered no strain was seen when Bernado Attolico, Italian ambassador to Germany, left Berlin for Rome with a message from Hitler to Premier Mussolini.

Attolico left for home last night, taking with him a full explanation of Germany's view of the present European crisis and a message reassuring Mussolini in every respect that Hitler is still his solid partner.

The fuehrer and the Italian envoy conferred before the latter departed. Foreign Minister Joachim von Ribbentrop and Field Marshal Hermann Wilhelm Goering were present during part of the conference.

Attolico is expected to return to Berlin Thursday or at latest on Friday, when he will talk with Hitler again and convey to him Il Duce's reply.

A further cementing of Italy-German friendship will be effected through Goering's resumption of his vacation at San Remo, a vacation he broke when the Czechoslovakian crisis suddenly flared up.

Goering is determined to leave Berlin for San Remo tonight unless unexpected circumstances prevent.

STRIKE AGAIN AT SAN QUENTIN

Prisoners Refuse Food; Warden Blames "15 Trouble-Makers."

SAN QUENTIN, Calif. —(AP)— Authorities of San Quentin prison acted today to break the second hunger strike of convicts in two months, and hinted at a plan to revoke the good behavior credits of strike leaders.

"The whole thing," said Warden Court Smith, "is due to about 15 trouble makers."

Sixteen hundred of the 5,300 inmates of San Quentin, reputedly America's most populous prison, refused to eat their evening meal yesterday after a protest against the prison fare. Later, however they went quietly to their cells along with 3,700 other convicts who had failed to join the strike.

URGES WATER, SEWER ACTION

Health Chief Urges Council to Consider Rehabilitation Programs Immediately.

vide for a "safer" supply to the community.

He indicated that it would be well for council to consider a "combination improvement program" that would benefit both systems in that the water distribution system and the sewers were closely related, meaning that improvements in one would necessarily call for the same improvements in the other.

Among other recommendations in the report, Dr. Rehder also called for the addition of another sanitary officer to the health department staff.

"The continued growth of the city with attendant expansion of the services of the department make it imperative that an additional sanitary officer be provided if the department is to avoid lowering the type of service with which it is accustomed to provide the public," he said.

It was also recommended that the county commissioners consider the establishment of a program for hospitalization and care for tuberculosis cases which may be considered as the basis of a permanent organization in the control of the disease.

Attention was directed to the fact that "too few children" have been inoculated to protect them against diphtheria.

"In the interest of protecting the public health, a program of this nature is very essential and should be inaugurated at once with the local medical association assuming the major role in this program," Dr. Rehder said.

Death Rate Drops.

The report showed that the city's death rate after climbing to a 10-year-high of 12.1 per thousand in 1937, dropped to 11.5 during 1938.

Births showed a slight decrease with a rate of 20.2 per thousand last year as compared with 20.6 per thousand in 1937. Of the 773 infants born last year, there were 410 boys and 363 girls.

Of the total number of births, 598 or 77.4 per cent were delivered at the hospital the report showed. This is a slight increase over the 1937 percentage of 75.

With the death of 35 babies under one year of age, the infant mortality rate of 45.3 per thousand showed a reduction from the 48.8 recorded in 1937.

Dr. Rehder reported that 1,775 cases of communicable diseases were reported to the health department during the past year. He pointed out that the total was by far the largest on local record and four times the number listed in 1937.

Smallpox and scarlet fever contributed mostly to the year's figures, Dr. Rehder said. He called the near epidemic of smallpox early last year "embarrassing and inexcusable experience" due to the neglect of the community to employ the preventative measures through vaccination.

The report showed that there were 40 cases of smallpox in the city last year, 129 cases of scarlet fever, 1,274 of measles, 60 of whooping cough, two of diphtheria and five of typhoid fever.

It was also revealed that 343 persons were admitted to the venereal disease control clinic during the past year with a total of 3,535 visits made for treatment. This is a 50 per cent increase over the number of visits made in 1937.

that would permit munitions sales to any country on a "cash and carry" basis and free the president from many of the restrictions of the present neutrality law. State, war and navy department officials were expected to endorse the bill.

2. The state department ordered its legation at Prague to be closed and summoned its minister to Czechoslovakia, Wilbur J. Carr, to return home.

3. The commerce department ordered its commercial attache at Prague to close his office, thus virtually cutting off all trade intercourse with Germany and its new territorial acquisitions.

4. The commerce department also reported that Germany's annexation of Austria and the Sudetenland has "influenced profoundly and adversely" Germany's economic position; that German finances are "showing evidence of strain."

Meantime U. S. Ambassador to Great Britain Joseph P. Kennedy was keeping the president informed on British foreign office action and the stiffening resistance of European democracies to Hitler's march to the east.

It was doubted that this country would take any direct part in a concerted move to "stop Hitler" other than to continue invoking economic sanctions such as the placing of the German-held Czech provinces on the foreign trade blacklist and imposing 25 per cent penalty duties against Nazi goods entering this country.

GIVE UP RECESS

G. O. P. Leaders Abandon Hope of Ending Term in April.

COLUMBUS —(AP)— Republican leaders of the legislature, after conferring with Gov. John W. Bricker, decided today that a contemplated recess for the first week of April was impractical.

J. Harry McGregor (R-Coshocton) house majority leader, said it would be impossible to complete action next week on the tax commission, conservation division and parole board reorganization bills and that it would be necessary to hold working sessions the following week.

Bromfield Asserts 'Nobodies' of 1929 Control Destiny of Europe Now.

ropean countries—Russia, France, Germany, Italy and England.

"About a year ago," he said, "I began to have a feeling that something terrifying was about to happen to all Europe; a premonition that what was happening was the slow death of Europe."

He was caustic in his criticism of Premier Neville Chamberlain. "The complete about-face of Chamberlain on his policy of appeasement is melodramatic. . . . If Chamberlain had not snubbed Russia before the Munich pact, what is happening today would not have happened at all, and Great Britain's premier would not now be on his knees before Stalin."

He said, contrary to popular belief, that Germany is no better off today than she was when Hitler first began his spectacular rise.

"The German people were never very democratic and the attempt to establish a democracy worked very badly," he said. "Along came a neurotic from the middle class of Austria who offered them a new plan, and they were desperate enough to try anything.

Says German Problem Grows.

"Economically, they are no better off than they were and politically they are much worse off. Germany's export problem grows worse daily . . . Austria and Czechoslovakia are liabilities instead of assets with most of their foreign trade now cut off. Hitler can honestly boast that Germany is infinitely better off from a military standpoint, but look at the condition of the people themselves.

"They have no more food and their clothing is much worse. Yet they must continue to cling desperately to Hitler and his plan, knowing that when the Nazi regime breaks, there will be greater anarchy in Germany than that which followed the abdication of the Kaiser—it will be neighbor against neighbor then."

Italy, he asserted, is devouring herself from within, eaten up with the most amazing system of taxation.

"The middle class of Italy has been practically destroyed while the lot of the poorest class has been improved. It was so terrible, however, that any change could only be an improvement. Business is being strangled . . . you can drive for 150 miles without seeing a filling station because of the prohibitive taxes on autos and gasoline. . . . There is a 25 per cent tax on real estate which no one can pay and a huge levy on capital."

Rumania, he said, would never have considered conciliating Germany by means of a trade pact, now seen as a possibility, if that country had any faith in France or England—both of which destroyed the world's faith in them when they failed to keep their promises to Czechoslovakia before Munich.

When asked what the American foreign policy should be, the writer said: "Isolation and neutrality are impossible. We can sell everything we have to sell—arms, munitions, supplies—to Russia, France and England, but we must sell on a strictly cash-and-carry basis, and thus keep out of the entire European entanglement."

Bromfield said that he closed his home in France and came back to American feeling that there was no peace in Europe, and that there would not be for years to come, and perhaps never again for any long periods.

He was introduced last night by Jane Williams of The News-Journal staff. Attorney Henry Huston of the University club closed the open discussion which followed the lecture and announced that plans were already being considered for another series of lectures next year.

CONVICT'S DAUGHTER + + +

By RUTH RAY KANE

(Copyright, 1939.)

CHAPTER TWENTY-FIVE

The train ride to Brighton and what Jim expected to be their new home was Lona's first experience in a Pullman. For a long time she lay awake, her head on Jim's arm, listening to the grinding of the wheels below her. And, as if the crowded intimacy of the tiny berth had opened his store of memories, Jim talked to her as he had never talked before.

He told her of his childhood in the western hills. He talked of herding cattle and round-ups, rodeos, words that to her were only printed names. He loved horses, it seemed, and dogs. They were to have a dog when they were settled in their new home, he promised her. A big, knowing, friendly beast that would be a real companion to her. None of your stringy lap dogs for him.

She could have lain there in his arms listening forever, she thought. In the shaded half light she studied his features as he talked. Relaxed, he looked boyish. The crinkling lines were smoothed out from around his eyes, and he smiled a little as he talked. She would like to have a son some day who would look like he did now, she caught herself planning, and blushing at the thought while she bravely pursued it. A fat baby with curly brown hair and brown "Tiny" eyes.

Lulled by the song of the grinding wheels and the wonder of her own dreams, she almost lost track of what he was saying, when she was aware that he had turned his eyes on her with a new intentness, and that a new, strained note had come into his voice.

"There's something I've been thinking ever since I saw that picture back in Fairfield," he brought out. "It's about the name of Claridge . . ." He hesitated.

"The name of Claridge? What do you mean?"

"They're on to it now. Maybe we shouldn't use it for a while. Somebody might—remember. Going into a strange place like Brighton, starting all over, maybe it would be easier if we used some other name."

Lona stared at him. "But Jim—"

"I want to get you away from everything that's happened to you, girl!" he burst out, and his eyes were intense. "Everything. Don't you see? Every little thing! The past musn't catch up with you again, not ever. I won't have you hounded, and stared at, and talked about. You're my wife, now. I'm not taking any chances."

A cold hand took hold of Lona's heart. So that was the way of it. "You shouldn't have married me, Jim, if you felt that way," she said, in a still, hurt voice. "I'm sorry you're — ashamed of me."

"Ashamed of you, girl? But you don't understand. It's not that. Don't think it's that, please. It's just that I can't stand to have you—talked about. Some jerkwater reporter out here will see that picture and my name, and connect us up if we don't change it. Can't you see? It's for your own sake, for your own peace of mind. You don't want to go through any more of that camera dodging, do you?"

"No, I suppose not. But I thought that, perhaps now, it would die down. I don't like changing names. It doesn't seem right, somehow."

"Trust me in this, will you, girl?" His voice was so earnest that she would have promised him the world if he had asked it. "I know what's best. My mother's name was Bennett. I have a right to use it if I see fit. . ."

"Bennett. Mrs. James Bennett! Just when I was getting used to Claridge, too. It's almost too much, Jim. Three names in two days!" She had to smile.

"Then you'll do it?" His voice was unduly eager, it seemed, but she stifled her doubts.

"If you think it's best, Jim," she said, so demurely that he laughed aloud.

"That's the girl!" he approved. "I can see you're going to make a model wife." He tighted his arm about her slender shoulders as the train lurched onward through the night.

"After all, what's in a name?" he quoted, gaily.

Settling for sleep Lona was conscious of his approval, and it warmed her with an inward glow, quieting the questions that edged into her mind. It must be right or Jim wouldn't do it, she told herself. Why worry?

So it was as Mrs. James Bennett, that Lona roamed about the thriving, energetic little town of Brighton next day in a pleasant flurry of "house hunting." She found the place delightful, a change from the city to which she had become accustomed, a leisurely town with wide streets, overhanging and neat rows of brisk business places in its downtown section. The bridge where Jim so confidently expected to find work was to span one of the heavy rivers, draining into the rolling bulk of Lake Erie a few miles up from the town. It was already in construction, a graceful filigree of spindling wires above yawning concrete abutments. It made Lona shiver a little to look at its towering height, but Jim exclaimed at sight of it.

"Sweet job!" he approved, and was off to find the engineer in charge, leaving her to her own devices.

The place reminded her pleasantly of Bridgewater, as she hesitated, wondering just how to go about finding rooms. There was no morning paper with its familiar "To Let" column as there would have been in the city, and she saw no sign indicating a real estate agency. Deep within her some instinct warned against attracting attention by making any pointed inquiries, and finally, with most of the day before her, she struck out up Main street, away from the business section. Perhaps, by just walking, she'd happen onto something.

It was on a shady street leading off from the far end of Main street that she saw, at last, a "For Rent" sign. It was in the window of a homey looking white house with a wide porch and, with a sudden feeling of having come home, she went up the walk and lifted the old-fashioned knocker.

"Come in," a voice sang out and, wondering at the quaint informality, she stepped into the hall. Through a door to the right she caught a glimpse of a pleasant living room. Framed against the light from the windows was a wheel-chair, and seated in the chair was a girl of Lona's own age.

The girl brought the chair forward to the middle of the room as Lona stood, uncertainly, and beckoned to the visitor with a smile. "In here, please," she invited.

Outlined in the streaming light, she was, Lona thought, the most remarkable looking girl she ever had seen. She was slight and straight for all her obvious slavery to the ugly chair, whose huge wheels flanked her on either side like sprouting wings. Her hair was pure golden, and fluffed about her small head like a halo. Her features were small, and perfectly molded. The eyes were a startling blue, shaded by long, doll-like lashes, and snapping with animation.

"You've come about the rooms, I suppose," she prompted, in a tinkling, silvery sort of voice, as Lona hesitated, a little startled by the unexpected encounter with such sheer beauty. "Won't you sit down?" she invited. "I'm Dinah Morriss. And this is the old Morriss home."

"Thank you," Lona heard herself murmuring, seating herself politely on the edge of the chair. "I'm Lona Bennett. Mrs. Bennett," she supplied stumbling a little over the name. "I saw your for rent sign and I'm hunting for rent sign and I'm hunting rooms for my husband and myself."

"I'm glad you came here." The girl's smile flashed out again, and Lona knew suddenly that she liked her. She liked this place, too, the old-fashioned but comfortable and obviously refined surroundings, the air of well being, and of good living that seemed to hang about the high-ceilinged room.

"The rooms are on the other side of the house," Dinah explained. "I'll show them to you. . . . if you'll help me a little with this chariot of mine." She laughed. "This way. Just push it over the door jam, please. I can manage the rest."

She chattered gaily as they went along the hall Lona had first entered, and through the door at the farther side from the Morriss living room. This part of the house proved to be a wing, composed of three spacious rooms: a living room with comfortable, well-chosen furniture, a bedroom with an antique mahogany bedroom suite, and a tiny cream and red kitchen, obviously newly built and done up in modern style. The moment Lona stepped into the gracious living room, she knew she had to have the place. It was hers, somehow, made for her. Her face was alight as she followed the lame girl's clicking chair.

"They're just what I wanted!" she exclaimed when they came to the shining kitchen. "Imagine finding a place like this!"

TUESDAY, MARCH 21, 1939.

The fact that he is acting sensibly is making Douglas Corrigan quite a novelty in Hollywood.

Seems odd, just after having learned how to spell Czechoslovakia without looking it up each time, that there's no longer any need to.

Congressman Bruce Barton counts 39 national "emergencies" which the New Deal administration says it had to meet during the past six years—seeming to feel that sufficient unto the day is the emergency thereof.

Traffic Fatalities Doubled In County.

FOUR traffic fatalities in Richland county thus far in 1939, as compared with two during the corresponding period last year, may not mean a great deal to the casual observer —BUT IT REALLY DOES MEAN THAT TWICE AS MANY PEOPLE HAVE BEEN KILLED BY AUTOMOBILES IN THIS COUNTY DURING THE FIRST 78 DAYS OF THIS YEAR AS A YEAR AGO.

Applied statistically throughout the country this would mean that, instead of a further drop in traffic fatalities, the toll for 1939 would mount to above 60,000 victims.

Last year, which was marked by intensified safety campaigns in many cities, showed a considerable reduction in fatal traffic accidents, as compared with the peak year of 1937, in which the total of deaths approached 40,000.

Accidents such as that which occurred in Lexington late last Saturday night bring out several points for consideration in connection with the need for continuous efforts to reduce highway dangers.

A responsibility, sometimes not recognized, rests on pedestrians to be watchful in crossing streets, and to make use of regular cross-walks instead of either walking in the street or attempting to cross in the middle of a block.

Condition of the highway should be kept in mind by motorists, so that they can be sure their car is under control and can be stopped quickly, even on a slippery pavement.

Safe speed for daylight driving is not necessarily safe after dark. Some cities take this into account by reducing the legal speed limit for night driving.

There is also the possibility, in villages such as Lexington, for the village council to pass an ordinance extending the built-up section and restricting speed therein to 20 miles an hour, instead of the 35 miles an hour now specified by state law on federal and state highways within municipalities.

Also made evident by the Lexington fatality is the importance of all motorists having a current driver's license, instead of assuming that this is not necessary—on account of never having been asked to show it.

Revising Labor Relations.

VARIOUS polls have found that two-thirds of all the voters having an opinion on the subject agree that the Wagner Labor Relations Act should be revised or repealed. When it comes to revision, however, the proposed changes are almost as numerous as the number of voters, with very little agreement on specific items to be changed. If everybody with a suggestion had the authority to make it effective, the result would be chaos.

The United States government sent commissions abroad to study labor relations in Great Britain and Sweden. Perhaps such a commission is needed to do the same job here. It might work out a practical program of labor legislation designed not to patch up weak places here and there but to set the whole industrial situation on a sound basis.

The nation wants business recovery. It wants industrial peace. It wants fair treatment of labor. It wants justice to employers. It is beginning to realize that none of these things can be attained by any means which permit either injustice or favoritism to any group. Prosperity of a kind that will hold on steadily seems to require the well-being of all members of the industrial establishment.

Too Much Radio Gun-Play.

A NEWSPAPER reader who thinks something should be done about exciting juvenile radio broadcasts tells this story:

His five-year-old grandson, coming to visit him, suddenly realized that he had never seen his grandmother, and asked where she was. The grandfather told him that she had died some years ago.

"Who shot her?" the boy asked. From the wild radio gun-play he had listened to, the child gained the idea that shooting people was a normal affair.

The columnist who reports the case is convinced, from the experience of his own children, that what he calls "incendiary radio programs" are very bad, because they get children so excited and give them such false ideas and standards. It not only hurts children, he says, but makes life miserable for their parents. And in expressing such criticism, he learns from the readers' response that parents are overwhelmingly with him.

The radio people who appear to be jangling the nerves and perverting the behavior standards of thousands of young people probably do not realize the trouble they are causing. If the parents and educators are right, wild juvenile broadcasts are nerve-wreckers and public nuisances instead of being "good clean fun."

Stingless Honey Bees.

SOME bee experts have been trying to breed honey bees without stings, and bee-keepers seem to like the idea. All except a thoughtful apiarist on an experimental farm in Canada.

The bees, he insists, need those stings. "Without them, they would be defenseless against the attacks of ants, wasps, moths and other honey consumers. Bears, skunks and human robbers could feed to their hearts' content." And with everybody else eating up their stored honey, the bees would soon perish for lack of food.

It sounds reasonable. Nature usually seems to know, in a surprising way, what she is doing.

There may be a half dozen other fellows in Germany who can double for Hitler—but can they also hang wall paper?

There's talk of pensioning congressmen—and some of them would doubtless be worth more that way.

Watching Trends

—By PRESTON GROVER

WASHINGTON — At times we feel like defender of the faith and protector of the senate, so insistent are we that this branch of the government be safeguarded in it sphere, but the battle for the time has been taken out of our hands and we are glad of it.

Sometimes it is just a little troublesome to defend the senate, not to mention when the house is thrown in too.

But the job has fallen to Jim Preston of Washington.

He has been chosen to present the senate properly before the country in the movies. For anyone in Washington to make a go of it in the movies is news in itself. It is true enough that Helen Hayes began her career here but she left early in life, long before the blight of politics had fallen upon her.

Jim came into the job this way. He once was superintendent of the senate press gallery — and may some day be again. More recently he has been keeping the national archives before the public eye. But all this went into the discard when Frank Capra, the producer, came to this town. He is dynamic. He met Jim Preston. Jim is not dynamic. He is factual. They merged.

Won't Overdo It.

CAPRA wanted to produce a picture about Washington. He wanted to tell the story of a Brilliant Young Senator coming to town to make the world over. Somehow romance gets tangled up in it but that is for Capra to worry about. Capra was just a little fearful that in his effort to put romance in the senate he might overdo the thing, get the atmosphere wrong, or slight an important tradition and make the film seem silly.

It is Jim's job to prevent that. He is senate tradition incarnate. He is a slender, tallish fellow about 55 who looks so much like Prime Minister Chamberlain that he was used as the main course at a Gridiron banquet skit on Chamberlain. He looks that way without dressing up. It is a natural. He even wears the black homberg, although he doesn't carry the umbrella, yet.

Jim came into the senate gallery the year before the Spanish-American war. He stayed through the World war and the war against the depression. He has known every senator well since 1895. The country is full of managing editors who were broken in to the Washington newspaper business by Jim Preston, as head of the press gallery.

Press Gallery Sacred!

TO HIM the gallery is something sacred, like nothing else in the world. He will tell you that the only real difference between the United States and Germany is the existence here of an independent, functioning congress. And that the thing that takes the congress to the people, so they understand its importance, is the press gallery.

Jim isn't to be in the picture. He is a "technical director." Capra has given him veto power over scenes that tell how congress functions. They must look and smell right, or no go.

We don't know just how the senate is going to appear, when it is toned up to fit the films. The country has been so long used to cartoon pictures of senators with high hats and white vests that the real thing may look like a fraud. There have been senators who look like that. There are some now. But Jim won't let the movies make them all look like that even if it spoils some of the romance. Jim knows that the senate is made up of honest men, smart ones, good lawyers, hacks, farmers, and a few squirted into public life from no place in particular.

It is just an average body of men, such as you might find any place. But once dumped into the senate they become a body of men like no other in the whole world.

Quite a task for Jim to put over that point—especially as a technical director.

Timely Editorial

What Made Money Timid.

The current phrase "lack of confidence" is a generality which may be interpreted definitely with figures. A statement just made by the Federal Reserve Bank of New York reveals how "timid" money is. It reports that within five years 17 billion dollars has gone into government securities, obviously not for good interest return but only because of the quest for safety. In the same period, only about one-seventeenth as much was invested in corporate securities as "venture" money put out with the hope of adequate return.

There is no way to determine how much of the flow of money into government securities was to avoid New Deal harassment. It is safe to assume that slump in commerecial investments had direct relation to the administration's failure to lift the business depression. It has become the period of timid money. — Toledo Blade.

"HEIL INDEPENDENCE!"

Language Barriers to Clarity

—By CHARLES P. STEWART

THE truth is that American diplomacy has no very clear idea of what has just happened under Herr Hitler's auspices in what was Czechoslovakia and thereabouts.

I'm certain that references to the Czechs and Slovaks, to Bohemia-Moravia, to Ruthenia and to the Carpatho-Ukraine sum up as a pretty meaningless jumble to the average citizen of this republic. He recognizes the names of a few cities mentioned in dispatches, such as Vienna, Budapest, Pilsen (an account of its beer) and Prague.

But places like Svalava, Kenderske, Torhegyalac and Bratislava? Naturally the signs on their whistling posts don't mean a thing. Some of them are not even pronounceable except locally. For instance—the important city of Przmysl? An eminent American geographer is on record to the effect that it isn't pronounced at all; it's sneezed. Then there's the neighboring city of Lwow. W, in that place's vicinity, is a mixture of W. V, and F. The authority just previously quoted points out that Lwow is neither pronounced nor sneezed; it's coughed.

How It Works.

I once knew an American, quite prominent in the publicity world, whose name was Siddall—pronounced, in our language, with the accent on the first syllable and with the vowel in the second syllable considerably slurred. One day I wrote it down like this—Szdl. And asked a Slovak friend what it sounded like to him. He pronounced it perfectly.

Well, as I was saying, I think that area is a good deal of a mystery to us.

We have some experts in the state department's division of eastern European affairs who probably understand this georgraphy and weird spelling somewhat, but the state department, as a whole, doesn't understand. I don't believe that even western European diplomacy does either.

It's notorius that peoples often clash because their respective languages differ and they don't fully understand one another.

Why can't they clash also because one side can't pronounce Przmysl or Lwow, and the other side can't pronounce Kalamazoo or Ypsilanti? Such misunderstandings can give rise to frontier disputes and such things.

I've seen it occur even in England, when an American tourist wanted to get a ticket from London to BIR-ming-HAM and the railroad agent insisted that he must mean BRUNG-'h-ng'm. I've seen it in Germany too—a foreign tourist bustled into the wrong train, because he or she was a little off on an accent.

I expect it happens here also.

What Did Hitler Do?

To summarize: what did Herr Hitler accomplish—so far as we're concerned—by his central European grab?

We don't know at all clearly.

We don't know just what he's grabbed.

He may have grabbed it, for all we know, to Italy's prejudice. If so we'll hear Italy squawk presently. It seems likely.

Italy started totalitarianism. Germany is trying now to take possession of it. Italy is to be squashed into the background. One would think that Signor Mussolini would holler. He's being too much extinguished.

Between 'em Hitler and Mussolini have had democracy on the run.

But aren't there signs that Nazism is becoming threatening to Fascism?

Hitler rapidly is developing into the "whole thing." I wouldn't suppose Mussolini would like it.

You and Your Nation's Affairs

Who Is a Liberal?

By ERIK M. ERIKSSON
Professor of History, University of Southern California.

There has been a tendency on the part of New Dealers to refer to themselves as "liberals," and to intimate that all who do not accept their program are reactionaries of tories. This has been particularly true during recent months and raises the question, "Who is a liberal?"

One may best arrive at an understanding of what a liberal is by first determining what a liberal is not. Certainly the New Dealers will agree that the leadership in the totalitarian states is not liberal. In those countries, all power is vested for all practical purposes in the hands of one man. Instead of the state existing for the people, the people exist for the state. Individual initiative is entirely suppressed, and the people are regimented completely. Fundamental liberties which are guaranteed in this country by the Constitution simply do not exist, in those nations dominated by dictators.

Here in the United States, freedom of religion is guaranteed to one and all. In contrast, one sees in Germany the persectuion of the Jews, and attempts to control the Catholics and the Protestants. Freedom of speech, which includes the right to criticize governmental officials, is guaranteed by our Bill of Rights. In Russia, criticism of the government is punished by execution by a firing squad or by a fate which is even worse—exile to Siberia.

Americans consider freedom of the press as one of the fundamental liberties. Where under dictatorship does one find this freedom? It simply does not exist, because a dictatorship cannot endure in a nation where the press is free to express itself without interference. Recently, announcement was published in the newspapers to the effect that the Rotary Clubs in Italy had disbanded. The organization, formed in 1910, has brought business and professional men together for discussion of problems of the day, and for the promotion of international goodwill. But, the dictator of Italy does not want to promote international goodwill. Nor does he dare to allow men to come together to discuss freely the current questions. Hence, the disbanding of the Rotary Clubs.

Any person who calls himself a liberal, in the United States, certainly must believe in these and other liberties which are guaranteed by our Constitution. Recognizing that in other countries these liberties have been destroyed by dictators, the American liberal ought then to agree that any governmental actions which threaten these liberties are not liberal actions. But what is it that the New Dealer who calls himself a "liberal" stands for? He stands for centralizing the powers of government in the hands of the officials at Washington. Furthermore, he stands for the concentration of this power in the hands of the chief executive.

Anyone who is not blind to realities must recognize that every step taken to centralize governmental power in this country and every measure which delegates additional power to the president or his subordinates is a potential menace to liberty. The prevalent tendency to set up administrative agencies exercising legislative, executive and judicial power, as does the National Labor Relations Board, for example, is another distinct threat to liberty, which, it is of interest to note, is receiving the whole-hearted support of the self-styled "liberals."

The true liberal is one who not only expresses a belief in the fundamental American liberties, but who seeks to safeguard these liberties by opposing the extension of Federal power and the increase in the authority of the chief executive and administrative agencies.

Listen, World!

Find Yourself Some Success.

—By ELSIE ROBINSON

TROUBLE is, you need to SUCCEED AT SOMETHING. I didn't need to tell you that, did I? You guessed it already. But it's doubtful if you know just how deeply, how strangely, you need Success.

Ever wonder why you get those sudden "mean spells"? . . . why you snap at the youngsters, Mary? . . . why you blow up at the office, Bill? . . . why you get the Blues? . . . go into the Sulks?

Probably you've blamed it all on Indigestion or Nerves—or that Temper you "inherited from dad's side of the family." But you're wrong. Those "spells" go deeper than that . . . indicate a more dangerous hunger. The Medicine Men — those wise old boys who study the flesh as well as the spirit—have a word for it. They say it's due to FRUSTRATION. Meaning that we all want to make good . . . want to achieve success. And when we don't, WE TAKE IT OUT ON THE OTHER FELLOW.

Brilliant old Sigmund Freud, father of modern psychology, figured it out first. The whole human race was his clinic. Here were millions of human beings of every degree, from plain Meanies to Public Enemies; why were nearly all of them unhappy! What was the common source of all this discontent? Most of them had been normal at birth . . . have exhibited when young the normal instincts toward friendliness. Why did they so soon become warped, sour, suspicious, generally malicious? Gradually the reason became plain.

THEY WERE SOUR BECAUSE THEY FELT DEFEATED. Everyone needed a certain amount of success to keep him in mental and spiritual health — just as they needed sunshine, rest, play, certain vitamins in their food. Even tiny babies needed success . . . went into squalling tantrums if their baby efforts were defeated. And that need increased with our growth. Our self-respect . . . our public standing . . . were based on it. Life wasn't just a scramble for food or money or love. IT WAS, FUNDAMENTALLY, A SCRAMBLE FOR SUCCESS . . . A STRUGGLE AGAINST DEFEAT.

DEFEAT — THAT WAS THE ROOT OF ALL MISERY, SAID SIGMUND FREUD. CROSS PEOPLE . . . COWARDLY PEOPLE . . . BULLIES AND CRIMINALS . . . WERE ALL FRUSTRATED, DEFEATED PEOPLE, WHO USUALLY SOUGHT COMPENSATION IN HURTING OR DEFEATING SOMEONE ELSE.

Sometimes, of course, they were too intelligent for such savagery. In which case they turned their efforts toward nobler aims which eventually led to fine achievement. But in any case, life was an endless circle of FRUSTRATION and AGGRESSION . . . failure and effort . . . effort and failure.

The "FRUSTRATION-AGGRESSION HYPOTHESIS" — that's what the psychologists call Sigmund Freud's theory. Big words —but you'll find that they explain the simplest situations in your life. Dig into any sudden, irritable outburst and you'll find a SENSE OF DEFEAT GNAWING AT ITS ROOT. That same sense of defeat may be poisoning your whole life, warping all your human contacts, spoiling your opportunities, wasting your assets. Yet it may have arisen from some pitifully trivial thing. As a girl, you weren't as well-dressed as other girls, didn't have beaux, weren't invited to their parties. Or, as a boy, you may have failed to make the football team or win the girl you wanted.

Disaster has insignificant sources. But so has the Mississippi! But, fortunately, if you once find the source of your personal defeat, you can cure it. How? Exactly as you'd cure a physical ailment. If you found that you were developing rickets, you'd mighty soon reach for a new diet. By the same token, if you're developing a SORE HEAD — REACH FOR SUCCESS.

Find some work, some hobby, no matter how small, at which you can succeed. Set up a lathe in your garage and make some furniture, or buy a set of chemicals and experimental apparatus, Bill. Take up a correspondence course in short stories or dressmaking, Mary. Discover something, ANYTHING, which you can do better than the next fellow . . . and before you know it, your whole life will be aglow with new pride, curiosity, ambition . . . and good nature!

Man About Manhattan

—By GEORGE TUCKER

NEW YORK — People who are close observers will note, when turning from 50th street into Rockefeller Plaze, a brass plate in the sidewalk and a similar one in the center of the street which says:

"Property line of the Trustees of Columbia University. Crossing is by permission only, which permission is revocable at will."

It seems strange to think that personal property can and does extend through the thoroughfares of New York. Rockefeller Plaza is a street connecting 50th and 51st streets between 5th and 6th avenues, and traffic streams through there daily. If the trustees ever became angry at anybody, or angry with everybody in general—as did that fellow who wrote in chalk on the walls of an uptown subway station, "Nuts to People"—they could make it pretty inconvenient for the hundreds upon hundreds who gain their offices daily by way of the Plaza.

For, curiously enough, the city legally couldn't lift a hand. Fiorello "Little Flower" LaGuardia, our mayor, is a fine mediator and conceivably could talk them out of it, but it would have to be talk. There isn't anything on the books that he could throw at them and make stick.

THOSE 50-foot elms being transplanted to 5th avenue aren't very "stately." The Rockefellers are having a row of them planted on the avenue breasting the Center, and the project is well under way. At a late hour today two were already in their places, and others in the offing. If they were in a field or on a plain they might look like pretty good timber. But stacked against some of the world's tallest buildings they appear dwarfed and misplaced—shrubs against a garden wall.

You hear a lot about yokels coming to the big city and craning their necks at the tall buildings. You ought to see the city slickers themselves craning their necks at the tree surgeons who are blasting with pneumatic drills through the sidewalk and the underlying bedrock, providing places to plant Mr. Rockefeller's elms.

People here gape for hours at steam-shovels or any mechanized excavator—gadgets the outlander wouldn't walk across the street to see. There has never been a time when some New York street wasn't being torn up or put down again, yet the natives can't get used to the confusion of big cranes lifting tons of rock and earth. They crowd the rails, jam the streets and gape for hours.

It wasn't very long ago that they actually formed a club, gave out membership cards, and became a subject of a news reel film. Holders of cards were entitled to criticize, adversely or otherwise, the men at work. To the professional steam-shovel gapers, it was a Roman orgy.

* * *

NEW YORK'S parks under snow are dreary and forlorn. Nothing looms colder or less inviting than an iron bench in an empty park under leaden skies. A downtown assignment carried me past Gramercy Park today and the lone sign of life was a squirrel, who stood gazing sadly out upon slush-splattered 20th street. He wouldn't even scamper out of the way as I trudged past, being content merely to shift his body in a half-shrug, as if the dangers of being trampled hardly mattered any more.

A Farmer's Diary

Wilderness Row.

—By CALVIN A. BYERS

THE neglected middle fence between my neighbor's land and our farm is overgrown with brambles, vines and scrubby trees. It is a harum-scarum strip of earth, yet I am fond of it, and find my feet making a beaten path along the nearer side, almost unconsciously. It seems a virgin spot, and about its tangled sides and inner, matted thicket, I feel that haunted call of the wilderness. The pungent, spicy odors of weeds and fleshy stems just emerging from the floor of leaves, the yellow locust roots and ever present alders, fill the spring air with mingled fragrances.

Now that the snow is gone, I see all about the leaves and grass, a systematic network of tiny burrows half on the surface, made beneath the snow by the wary field mice. Here they enjoyed shelter and abundance of sweet tender grass roots, securely hidden from the eye of noiseless hunting owls or hawks. The fierce, relentless weasel could not follow. But even here the busy gluttonous shrew, was ever upon their trail, and made their cunning homes, sometimes, a death trap from which there was no escape.

In several places along the narrow strip the shy, grizzly groundhog has dug fresh soil among the roots and bushes, and made a new lookout. Even now, nestled beneath that tangled mass, and warmed by a mother's fine thick fur, the first spring nurseries of baby groundhogs may be hidden away.

Amid this same protective covering, last night, I heard the plaintive night call of a quail, coaxing the bevy to silent rest in some secluded spot. This morning I saw where they had camped, ten or a dozen in a compact circle, with heads out and tails touching, so that from any angle they might protect each other.

Here the bluebird warbles, gathers insects and builds his summer home. The oriole hangs his swinging nest from the bending branch of a stunted elm sapling.

From these same haunts, on some moonlight night, the mother skunk leads forth her untutored, white-striped tribe to get a clearer view of this new world to which they came so recently.

This little wilderness strip has the call of the wild to me—and something is always happening, day or night.

Words of Wisdom.

Poverty is uncomfortable, as I can testify, but nine times out of ten the best thing that can happen to a young man is to be tossed overboard and compelled to sink or swim for himself.—Garfield.

Hints on Etiquette.

A pleasant "Good morning" when you enter your office is not only a sign of good breeding, but makes a distinctly pleasant impression.

One-Minute Test Answers.

1. "Mighty Casey has struck out," from "Casey at the Bat."

2. It is a standard coin of Hungary.

BALANCED HIS BOOKS ALONE

But Reached for Help to Keep His Own Balance When Dizzy Spells Overtook Him.

Bookkeeper Tells Of World's Tonic Experiences

For some reason or other, many humans will go far out of their way to do things for others and, for some unexplainable reason, neglect to do even the smallest of things for themselves. And so with the admonition, charity begins at home, we repeat the experience of Mr. Emil Miller of 1000 Burkhart Ave., Akron, Ohio, an office employee of Enterprise Mfg.. Co.

"Often, when bent over my desk at work in the office, I would get spells of blood rushing to my head. This would be followed by dizziness and dozens of little spots would dance before my eyes. Often when I got up for something during one of these spells I would have to reach for something to help suport myself or it seemed I would fall over. Confinement all day in an office helped develop a state of almost chronic constipation and these spells resulted, in company with many other annoying and painful conditions.

"Sometimes I'd have raging headaches and pains all over, particularly across my back over my kidneys. At other times my legs would have cramps, especially when it got damp. I felt I could tell when it was going to rain. This dizziness bothered me on the street and took the pleasure away from walking. Auto-intoxication, I believe, would probably fit my symptoms. I had a bird-like appetite and indigestion, gas and bloating made my frugal meals an unwelcome duty.

"I must say, that after trying all sorts of medicines I got much more comfort and relief out of World's Tonic than all of them put together. With my constipation so splendidly relieved, all of its consequences are practically no more. The dizzy spells are going fast, my stomach is better and I am starting to eat well again. Pains and aches are much better and many thanks to World's Tonic."

World's Tonic contains a goodly portion of roots and herbs gathered from various parts of the old countries where many of us and most of our ancestors originally came from.

THEATERS

THE moors of England provide the background for at least two new pictures. "Sherlock Holmes," with Basil Rathbone in the title role, and Richard Greene and Wendy Barrie, has several scenes on the gloomy moors. "Wurthering Heights," which stars Merle Oberon as the lost Kathy, has its most poignant action on the wind-swept moors. This film, soon to be released, is remindful of "Smilin' Through," with a deep love ending in tragedy. Both of these English stories have been filmed in America, which will please American film followers who still feel that while English stories and stars are attractive, American directors and technicians far outrank their English brothers.

Shirley a Red-Head.

Who would ever dream that golden haired Shirley Temple would turn out to be a red-head? Her first technicolor film, "The Little Princess," shows the famous Temple curls to be a definite red. The color film gives radiant lights and shades to the nine-year-old star. It is also very kind to Anita Louise, one of Hollywood's prettiest. Richard Greene and Ian Hunter are also in the cast. The picture, shown at the Madison, is in the period of the Boer war and Queen Victoria's reign.

No Ability, But—

Not even the beauteous Miss Lombard can hold the attention of spectators when either of the two babies are on the screen in "Made For Each Other." It takes two babies to play the role of one child; a newly born baby is shown and later Jackie Taylor, one year old, plays the role. With no acting ability at all, Jackie gets more than his share of attention from the audience. There is plenty of human interest in this Carole Lombard-James Stewart picture at the Ohio.

Bradna and Milland.

When a young man's secret bride becomes his mother's personal maid in order to bridge over circumstances, there's sure to be trouble, and plenty of it happens to Olympa Bradna and Ray Milland in "Say It In French," which comes to the Ritz Wednesday. The cast includes Mary Carlisle, Irene Hervey, Janet Beecher, Erik Rhodes and Holmes Herbert. The re-issue of an old box office feature brings an old favorite, Ben Lyon and Claudette Colbert in "I Cover the Water Front."

"Three Comrades."

One of the most stirring romances in recent years is that of Erich and the waif in "Three Comrades," Eric Remarque's story of three comrades who return to their homes in Germany after the war to find that there is no place for them and the ideals for which they fought do not exist. Margaret Sullavan and Robert Taylor are the boy and girl, with Franchot Tone and Robert Young as the other two comrades who are "all for one, one for all." Miss Sullavan gives her finest performance in this role and her gaiety makes her audience forget the tragedy of her life. "The Chaser" is also shown at the Ritz.

Haunting Music.

If there were no other reason for seeing "Snow White and the Seven Dwarfs" twice, the music alone would make it worth while. The loveliest and most haunting music in many moons came out of the Disney cartoon feature. Among the most memorable songs are "Whistle While You Work," "Hi-Ho," "The Wishing Well," and "Some Day My Prince Will Come." The Disney picture is the current attraction at the Park theater and runs through Wednesday.

REDUCING FIRE MENACE PAYS HOME OWNERS

Yearly Bill for Blazes in Homes $500,000,000; Fireproofing Cuts Loss.

Reports on fire losses during recent years, by careful analysis, are giving home owners added reason for making home improvements now. Each year sees a huge toll exacted by fire in both lives lost and good American dollars gone up in smoke. By way of reminder, the yearly bill for fires amounts to about $500,000,000.

Close examination of these figures shows that 62 per cent or almost two thirds of all fire losses occur in one and two family homes. This amounts to a direct loss of over $300,000,000 yearly. All the evidence points to the need of fireproof construction to curb this enormous loss of money and its accompanying loss of life. Statistics show that fireproof basements reduce the fire hazard since most fires in small homes start at this point.

By intelligent use of concrete in the basement, not only will a dangerous breeding place for fires be eliminated but valuable wasted space utilized as well. A playroom, den or workshop can be provided at comparatively little cost. A concrete floor is economical, permanent, and easy to work with. Needed partitions can be built with new lightweight, fireproof concrete block. Once the basement is improved the tendency to make it a catchall for rubbish is eliminated and with it a dangerous fire hazard.

Loans for just such purposes under the FHA plan can be made through local banks, loan companies and material dealers, at a reasonable interest rate.

ENDS NOISE OF WATER HAMMER

Shock Absorber Suggested as Method to Eliminate Racket in Basement.

Is the plumbing in your house noisy? Perhaps it needs a shock absorber, the Plumbing and Heating Industries Bureau suggests.

The Bureau further points out that the most common cause of the damage and this costly annoyance is "water hammer." Water hammer is a name used to describe the condition caused by the thrust of a rapidly moving body of water in a pipe when the flow of this water is suddenly stopped.

The degree of water hammer and the amount of damage is determined by the volume and velocity of flow and the quickness with which the flow is stopped by meeting with some resistance. This resistance is often due to the sudden shutting off of a valve or faucet but it also occurs where water heaters, dish washers, washing machines, self-closing faucets, closet flush valves or other similar mechanical devices are installed.

This water hammer can be compared with the forward lurch of the passengers in any motor driven vehicle when the brakes are applied suddenly.

The terrific noise of water hammer, which is heard throughout the home in which it exists because the pipe lines serve as a telephone wire transmitting the noise to every part of the house, isn't the only disadvantage of this condition. Water hammer is also one of the most frequent causes of breaking—and consequent leaking—of water pipes, loose pipes, and leaking faucets.

Until recently, the only known means of subduing or partially diminishing the water hammer condition was with the use of an air cushion which is commonly called an air chamber. This is a dead-end of pipe from nine to twelve inches long extending on the supply lines beyond the point at which the branch line is connected to a fixture.

In most cases, it is found that water hammer is so severe that it cannot be controlled by air cushions. Furthermore, the air chamber eventually becomes filled with water thereby losing whatever cushioning effect it may have had and then it becomes necessary to drain the water out of the entire line.

A shock absorber recently perfected is not an air chamber.

Home With or Without Basement

This house sold in St. Louis, Mo., for $3,450. A $2,700 mortgage on the property was insured by the Federal Housing administration and the owner will amortize the loan over a period of 20 years with monthly payments of $24. This sum includes payments on taxes, insurance and other fixed charges. The same house, without a basement, may be purchased for $2,950. The heating unit of the basementless home is located in the kitchen as shown in the smaller photo.

BLUE, YELLOW KITCHEN

The kitchen of an attractive country home is made bright with walls and woodwork painted a sunny yellow. The floor covering is deep blue. There are flower boxes in the windows which are also painted yellow. Window curtains are blue and white plaid.

TO COLOR SHELLAC

When it is desirable to add color to liquid shellac, aniline dyes soluble in alcohol may be employed. To color melted shellac, dry colors are stirred in until they are thoroughly incorporated with the shellac.

FOR BOY'S ROOM

A monotone color scheme is effectively carried out in a room for a boy of high school or college age. Painted walls of pinkish-beige meet a soft brown carpet. The pickled oak furniture is upholstered in a checked upholstery fabric in natural color, and the draperies are of beige and brown striped chintz. One large club chair is covered with blue material.

FIRE HAZARDS

Attics stuffed with discarded articles, broken furniture and boxes of odds and ends, are in the nature of fire hazards. It is not only a safety measure but a direct advantage to your home and family that such attics be transformed from a sort of junk-pile to an attractive extra room in which you can sew, park an extra guest, or allow the children to play. A practical and economical way to refinish the walls of such a room is to line them with composition board, painted a color that will reflect all possible light. The cost of such repairs and painting may be covered by a loan through the Property Improvement Credit Plan of the Federal Housing Administration. Any paint dealer or painting contractor in your town will give you necessary details on how to negotiate the loan to be paid back in regular installments from your income.

PAINT FOR SAFETY

A long step toward accident prevention in factories is the painting of movable parts of machinery or other equipment with bright colors in direct contrast to immobile parts. The location of dangerous equipment is also emphasized with circles painted on the floor or wall.

FOR COLONIAL COTTAGE

For the exterior of a Colonial type cottage, use ivory paint for the body color, sash and trim. Use deep maroon for the shutters. The shingles on the roof will look well finished in warm brown.

'SCOTCH BATH'

A Scotch family has decorated their bathroom with a characteristic use of color. The walls and ceiling are painted white and the black enameled baseboard encloses a black enameled floor. A bright tartan plaid of red, green and blue, chosen for the window curtains, is repeated in a border on the edge of the white hamper.

VOTE TODAY ON STATE HIGHWAY 'REVAMP BILL'

State Senators Get Hint of Strong Opposition to Plan Cutting Personnel.

(By Associated Press)

COLUMBUS — Administration-sponsored legislation to reduce sharply the state highway department's executive personnel went on the senate calendar for a vote today amid reports that it might meet strong opposition from undisclosed sources.

Reorganization of the state's parole system, including abolition of the present board and creation of a new commission, also was on the senate calendar but leaders expressed doubt whether they would reach a vote on this measure.

The joint legislative committee investigating relief needs ordered speedy completion of public hearings, aiming to finish them possibly by the end of the week and to start drafting its 18-month program immediately.

Sponsored by Sen. Walter G. Nickels (R., Tuscarawas), the highway reorganization measure would drastically reduce the number of administrative positions but substantially increase salaries for the remaining jobs.

Col. Robert S. Beightler, present highway director, said the reorganization would cut the department's salary expenses by nearly 30 per cent.

Cuts Down Districts.

The Nickels bill would divide the state, for highway purposes, into five districts instead of the present 15 divisions provided by law, although only 12 have been operated. Replacing existing organizations in each of the 88 counties would be 25 districts, some of which would embrace several counties.

Salary of the highway director would be raised from $6,500 to $7,500 a year; of the chief engineer, replacing the present first assistant director, from $5,000 to $6,500, and of four assistant chief engineers from $4,000 to $5,500.

Engineers in charge of the five newly-created districts would get $5,000 instead of $4,000 now paid division engineers. The new division engineers would get $4,000 annually each. County resident engineers now receive $3,000.

Several senators said there was an attempt to organize opposition to the measure's elimination of county unit control over roads.

Committees in both branches, faced with a drive by the Republican leadership for winding up the session as quickly as possible, pushed ahead on their major bills.

Proposals for reorganizing the state's civil service system were scheduled for final action tonight in the house committee on organization of the state government.

The house taxation committee suspended consideration of all other measures pending disposition of the senate-approved bill for abolishing the state tax commission and setting up instead a single commissioner and board of tax appeals. Hearings were begun last night and another scheduled for this evening.

The senate utilities committee killed a controversial bill to license itinerant merchants and approved another permitting laymen to appear before the utilities commission, after amending the measure to limit their work to transportation matters and to bar them from rate and valuation cases.

600 HEAR GEN. BUTLER CHAMPION NEUTRALITY IN SHELBY ADDRESS

SHELBY — Calling the present situation in Europe just a "horse trader's" huddle, Major General Smedley D. Butler, former commandant of the United States Marine corps, protested against any American participation in wars on foreign soil last night in an address in Shelby high school auditorium before a capacity audience of 600 persons. The meeting was held under the auspices of the Shelby post, Veterans of Foreign Wars.

General Butler appealed to all Americans to fight for a war referendum, leaving the matter of going to war to popular vote, in his address here last night. General Butler also asked the support of the American people to back a neutrality bill to keep American business interests from selling arms to fighting countries.

He pointed out that no country would be able to invade the United States due to the fact that an army of one million men would have to be landed in this country within 50 miles of the fighting front and in a week's time. Only two harbors, New York City and Norfolk, Va., would be available to land such a force, Butler disclosed. Both harbors could be closed to an invading fleet in time of war. An airplane threat would not be possible, General Butler said, "until planes can be made to carry bombs on a continuous trip of 9,000 miles."

"America's best solution to stay out of war would be to serve notice on all countries that we would not sell arms to any country, that we would not fight on foreign soil, and to build the strongest coastline defense for our nation that we could have."

Preceding General Butler's address, a musical program of patriotic songs was presented by the 45-voice high school chorus under the direction of Music Supervisor Russell Conger. A short address was given by State Commander Arthur Judge of Cleveland and a reading, "Mary Stewart," by Miss Esther Lantz of Mansfield. Police Chief Leroy Coffey was the toastmaster in the absence of Mayor D B. Young. The benediction was given by Rev. Michael McFadden.

BOARD SETS UP OWN SENIOR HIGH PROJECT AS WPA REFUSES HELP

Refused WPA help, the Mansfield board of education today had set up its own $1,000 project for renovating the interior of Senior high school auditorium.

The board, which previously had appropriated $450 to paint the auditorium, last night allotted an additional $350 for paint and new shades. Senior high school pupils have agreed to contribute the remaining $200 from funds which they propose to raise from entertainments at the school.

The board applied for federal aid for the project last month, but WPA officials refused to accept a project for less than $15,000 because it would not provide enough labor.

Urging that work on the auditorium be started during the Easter vacation week, starting April 9, J. B. Moke, superintendent of buildings, estimated that new window shades and drapes would cost $400 and the interior painting approximately $600.

"If we are going to continue to use and rent the auditorium, we must do something to make it presentable and easier to keep clean," Moke told the board.

The interior of the auditorium has not been redecorated since the high school was built in 1926, and drapes in the hall are badly worn.

New stage lighting equipment was installed in the auditorium recently, however, and the floor of the stage was sanded and refinished.

The appropriation for improvement of the building will come from the school's general operating fund, Moke said, since the $15 rent usually paid for use of the hall does not provide for repairs.

PUPILS IN CITY SCHOOLS TO GET FREE EYE TESTS

Board Told Examiners Will Be Sent to Mansfield by Ohio Commission for Blind.

Free eye tests for pupils in the Mansfield schools will be provided soon through cooperation with the Ohio Commission for the Blind, Supt. W. L. Miller told the board of education at its session last night.

Competent persons will be sent here from Columbus by the commission to examine pupils eyes and suggest treatment where defects are found, Miller said.

A meeting of elementary teachers will be held Wednesday evening to acquaint them with the procedure of the survey and set up an organization to facilitate the tests, he said.

Revises Roseland Lease.

The board revised its lease for the Roseland school building providing for rental to the Roseland grange for $1 per month instead of $5 as called for in a previous lease. The grange will pay insurance on the building and finance repairs. The lease provides that undenominational Sunday school services may be held in the building each week.

Located north of the city, the Roseland school was abandoned several years ago when the district was consolidated with Mansfield schools.

The board considered a petition for setting up a rifle range at Senior high school, but deferred action on the request until a check is made of facilities for a range.

The petition stated that 60 pupils and six faculty members are interested in the proposal and suggested that the range be set up in the new shop addition.

Board members, however, frowned on that proposal and asked J. B. Moke, superintendent of buildings, to investigate the possibility of establishing a range in the basement of the Senior high school.

Members of the proposed rifle club would provide their own equipment, and the range would cost the school board virtually nothing, Supt. Miller said.

DEADLINE SET

Claims Under 1938 Soil Plan Must Be Filed by March 31.

The deadline for filing applications, appeals and claims under the 1938 soil conservation program has been set for March 31, G. L. Taylor, chairman of the Richland county agricultural committee, said today.

Farmers have 30 days after the application leaves the state office to sign and return the blanks to the county office, he said. The chairman warned that there will be no extension.

In cases where an application is mailed to the applicant for signature, or he is notified that his application is a no-payment case, he will be notified by the county office of the time he has to sign and return the application or submit an appeal, Taylor asserted.

Approximately 1,300 Richland county farmers signed up to participate in the 1938 program which paid benefits for reducing cash crop acreage and using soil-building methods.
